B.C. to Get $450,000,000 Natural Gas System

McMahon Outlines Project

First stage of a new $450,000,000 natural gas transmission system for B.C. was disclosed in a joint announcement here yesterday by Premier Bennett and petroleum magnate Frank M. McMahon.

Immediate plans call for expenditure of $100,000,000 during 1961 on construction of a 250-mile feeder pipeline in northern B.C.

DOUBLE CAPACITY

Second stage, three to four years away, will involve a $100,000,000 expansion of the feeder system and a $250,000,000 project designed to double the carrying capacity of the 650-mile Westcoast Transmission Co. trunk line between Taylor and Sumas.

The entire project, Mr. McMahon told reporters in the premier's office late yesterday, is designed to make possible the transmission of 1,000,000,000 cubic feet of gas a day from northern B.C. to the Lower Mainland.

AVERAGE GOAL

Westcoast Transmission Co. hopes to average 300,000,000 cubic feet a day through 1960 and has capacity for 650,000,000 feet.

The northern B.C. feeder system will link Westcoast's gathering point at Taylor, 30 miles northwest of Dawson Creek, with Fort Nelson, at the threshold of what is believed to be one of the most valuable gas fields in North America.

BUILDER NAMED

It will be built by Gas Trunk Line of British Columbia Ltd. with participation of "principal operating companies in the development of British Columbia's . . . oil and gas industry," Mr. McMahon said.

Directors and detailed proposal of the new company will be announced soon, he said.

The line will put the company in position to tap such wells as the fabulous Kotocho Lake wildcat of Western Natural Gas Company which, with an estimated open flow capacity of 835,000,000 cubic feet a day, could produce enough gas to supply all of Canada.

VAST RESERVE

It will also help to form an obvious Lower Mainland outlet for the vast natural gas reserve believed to exist in the Yukon.

Mr. McMahon said yesterday that some of the wells drilled in northern B.C. recently have capacities as big as any in the world and that the field has yielded one producing well for every two wildcats drilled.

By comparison, only one of every nine wildcats becomes a producer in the U.S. and only one of five in oil and gas-rich Alberta.

Production capacities of the wells are running from 20,000,000 to 30,000,000 cubic feet a day in the area.

Mr. McMahon, who is president of Westcoast Transmission Co., said the project is being developed by a consortium of British Columbia companies.

Russian in Space Now U.S. Expert's Hunch

WASHINGTON (CP) — Collapse of the Paris summit conference and return of the cold war may help rescue Bomarc-B missile production program from the congressional knife.

Senators who formerly criticized the Bomarc and other controversial military projects suddenly became sympathetic Wednesday, urging the defence department to do everything it can to boost U.S. military strength.

SUMMED UP

Sen. Richard Russell, Georgia Democrat, appeared to sum up feelings prevailing in Congress when he told a Senate appropriations subcommittee:

"A man erratic enough to do what Khrushchev did at Paris is capable of doing almost anything. We have too much at stake to deal with him except from a position of strength."

READY TO HELP

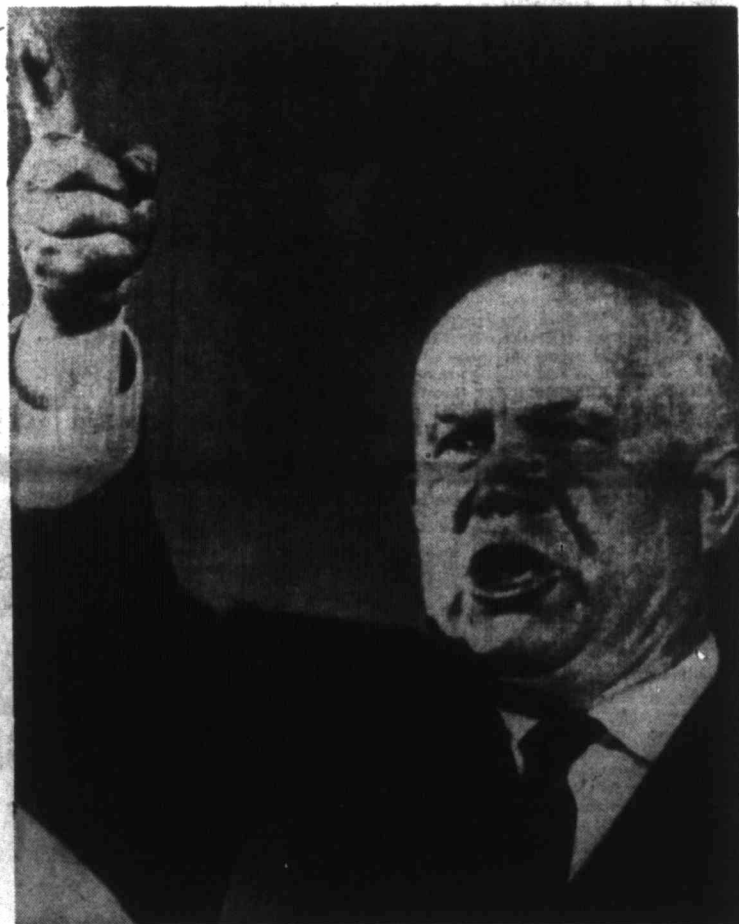

Senator Dennis Chavez, subcommittee chairman, told James Douglas, defence undersecretary: "We are ready to co-operate. Tell us what you need; we are ready to provide."

Douglas, among other things, appealed for restoration of the Bomarc-B production program which the House of Representatives had decided to eliminate.

CHANGE LIKELY

Chavez, who previously had criticized the Bomarc as a poor performer, said after the hearing the committee is likely to recommend restoration of funds for the Bomarc.

Douglas asked the subcommittee to recommend that $294,000,000—which the House of Representatives withdrew from Bomarc-B production—be returned so the air force could resume limited production.

Angry Khrushchev Says:

War Is Inevitable if U.S. Sends Any More Spy Planes

PARIS (UPI) — Nikita Khrushchev, booted as the summit villain, ranted and raved yesterday that war is inevitable if the United States sends spy planes over Russia, and insulted President Eisenhower again by comparing him to a "thief caught red-handed."

The Soviet premier shouted and roared and for some moments seemed incoherent as he stood before a noisy crowd of 2,000 at a news conference where he screamed out a tirade against the United States, Eisenhower and West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer.

The Russian leader, whose demands for an abject American apology for the U-2 spy plane incident wrecked the summit conference, left this swan song as he prepared to fly off to East Berlin today.

He threatened to break off the East-West Geneva disarmament talks and resume nuclear testing if the United States does.

He vowed to sign a separate East German peace treaty at a time of his own choosing, which could renew the Berlin crisis.

● He threatened to shoot down any more American spy planes and attack the bases from which they took off.

● He rejected as undignified espionage the new, expanded Eisenhower "open skies" aerial inspection plan.

Quicker Than Expected

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The Soviet Union brought the U.S. U-2 spy plane case to the United Nations Wednesday night, declaring American flights over Soviet soil threaten world peace.

The Russians demanded urgent action by the UN Security Council to stop all such flights.

In Paris this week President Eisenhower said the flights.

over Russia had been ordered stopped as of last Thursday.

The Soviet move came quicker than American and other diplomats had expected. In effect, the Russians beat the United States to the draw.

In Washington, officials said the U.S. would welcome full discussion of the incident in the Security Council.

The announcement of the Soviet move came as diplomatic sources disclosed U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge is going to Washington for urgent weekend conferences with Eisenhower on the U.S. course now in the UN.

AERIAL SURVEY

The United States was reported planning to call next week for a meeting of the Security Council to consider Eisenhower's proposal for an international aerial survey under the auspices of the UN to guard against surprise attack. Khrushchev had said he might request consideration of the U-2 case here.

GROMYKO CABLE

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko cabled the request from Paris, where the summit conference broke up Tuesday over the U-2 spy plane incident May 1. He said the American flights were "aggressive acts."

In a statement issued soon after the UN released Gromyko's message, Lodge denied this.

"There have been no aggressive acts such as the Soviet complaint alleges. Instead of making charges, we should all look for the cause of the trouble—which is the danger of sudden death due to surprise attack by nuclear weapons."

A. In shock.

Q. It seems to me that just getting started on Q-Day with this no smoking business is going to be the biggest problem. How will you start?

Cigaret Addict's Diary

A. With a snarl. This will drive my family well away from the danger area for the entire day. They will not only be out of harm's way, they will be far enough off so that they won't see me if I nip into the bush for a few fast drags.

Q. If you fail to stop smoking after the Arthur King treatment are you going to conclude that you have no will-power?

A. No, I'm going to write a pretty nasty letter to Arthur King.

your wife has $100 that certainly makes her worthwhile.

Q. When I catch my young son smoking I wash out his mouth with soap. What do you think of that?

A. I think that's bully. Q. I can't seem to find Arthur King in "Who's Who." Is he alive or did you just invent him?

Russia Won't Copy U.S. Combat Test

PARIS (Reuters)—Soviet Defence Minister Marshal Malinovsky said yesterday Russia would not conduct a combat readiness test even though the United States did so Monday.

John D. Tells Commons:

Time for Review, Reflection, Not Provocation

OTTAWA (UPI)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker expressed a cautious hope yesterday that the world might not be thrown back into the "frightening gloom" of the cold war despite the summit fiasco.

He combined the hope with a stern notice to Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev that his "deplorable" summit conduct would fail to divide the Western alliance.

"On the contrary, his tactics have already served to strengthen the resolve of the Western countries to remain united," Diefenbaker said in a Commons statement that brought bipartisan applause.

FULL BLAME
The prime minister laid full blame for the summit collapse on Khrushchev, made no attempt to hide the government's deep distress at the abrupt outcome, but suggested the worst might be avoided.

"I think I express the views of all honorable members of this House when I say that despite the tragic international drama of yesterday, the development of the last few days, mankind has not been thrown all the way back into the frightening gloom of the cold war," he said.

Diefenbaker called for "review and reflection, not provocation and incitement" in the new period of international tension. It was essential the West continue its efforts to make progress toward peace and security, he said.

Whether progress can be made, particularly in the crucial Geneva disarmament and nuclear test negotiations, depends on whether Khrushchev wants the discussions to continue or end as abruptly as the summit, he added.

Diefenbaker accused Khrushchev of smashing the hopes of millions of people throughout the world.

Any complaint the Soviet leader had over United States spy flights should have been settled by President Eisenhower's promise that such activity had been stopped, a promise made without a reciprocal assurance from the Soviet Union, Diefenbaker added.

SUPPORT
His remarks received wholehearted support from opposition spokesmen.

Liberal leader Lester Pearson said that, despite yesterday's Khrushchev news conference that made affairs "perhaps a lot worse," it was not the time for panic or for "yielding to the temptation to give up in search for peace."

Earl Russell:

War by Russia 'Quite Possible'

VANCOUVER (CP)—Philosopher Bertrand Russell said Wednesday the international situation is the most serious since the Second World War.

One of two Nobel Peace Prize winners interviewed by telephone by a Vancouver newspaper, Earl Russell said it is quite possible Russia will start a nuclear war.

ARMS RACE
The other prize winner, Sir Phillip Noel-Baker, blamed the arms race for the present crisis.

PALACE REVOLT
Earl Russell said from his north Wales home he believes Khrushchev has suffered a palace revolt by senior Soviet officials who want a tougher policy line in dealings with the West.

Asked if he thought world statesmen would be rash enough to risk a nuclear war, Earl Russell replied:

THIS IS FOLLY
"Indeed, I think so. The Russians imagine they could defeat the West. I believe this is folly. If there is a nuclear war, we all die."

He said he placed nine-tenths of the blame for the summit breakdown on Khrushchev and one-tenth on the U.S., the latter for ordering spy flights at a time when the summit talks could be harmed.

TRUE PEACE
Noel-Baker said "espionage destroys the confidence on which true peace can be built."

He said from his home in Wales:

"We must abandon the arms race and negotiate a true peace through the United Nations."

Warsaw Pact Meeting Set?

East Berlin Puts Off Welcome Rally

BERLIN (Reuters)—A mass rally to welcome Soviet Premier Khrushchev was postponed from today until Friday, East Berlin radio announced Wednesday night.

No reason for the change was given.

There were unconfirmed reports that a meeting of the Warsaw military pact had been scheduled. There was no indication whether there was any connection between these reports and the postponement.

By Khrushchev and Walter Ulbricht, East German Communist leader, will speak to the rally. A foreign ministry spokesman said Khrushchev will arrive here today as planned but he could not say what would take place instead of the rally.

Observers said Khrushchev may want to consult East German leaders before making his Berlin speech on his way home from the wrecked summit conference in Paris.

Official East German sources discounted suggestions that a peace treaty between Russia and East Germany would be signed during the visit.

Western diplomatic quarters said Khrushchev's talks with East German officials might deal with plans for reviving the Soviet proposal for a 31-nation peace conference advanced last January.

At that time, Russia suggested separate but identical peace treaties be signed with East and West Germany. The West rejected the proposal, insisting on the reunification of Germany before a peace settlement.

Norwegian Foreign Minister Halvard Lange cancelled a two-week private visit to Moscow later this month "because of the increased burden of work in the situation which has arisen."

FLASHPOINT
West Berlin, blocked by the Soviets in 1948-49, was expected to be the flashpoint in any new cold war upsurge.

West German Foreign Minister Heinrich von Brentano voiced the fear that a new Berlin crisis must be faced.

Chancellor Adenauer's ruling Christian Democratic party declared the international situation now was more serious than ever in the wake of the summit collapse.

BITTER ATTACKS
Soviet newspapers bitterly attacked President Eisenhower, labelled a "man of peace" until the spy flight. They also played up the big support Khrushchev's tough Paris tack supposedly was winning at mass meetings and elsewhere in the Soviet Union.

Pravda said that in Moscow alone 1,250,000 people had attended such meetings.

A Sombre Outlook

SO Mr. Khrushchev has packed up and gone home and the summit conference is over before actually it even began. Such cynical scuttling is as startling as his behavior. It reveals afresh that Soviet and Western philosophies, as well as mode of conduct, are as far apart as the poles. Whether they can ever meet on common ground is highly conjectural.

One thing the Soviet premier has done. He has solidified the Western alliance. If he hoped to split it because of chagrin and annoyance over the spy-plane incident he has failed. The allies of the United States are unhappy about America's dreadful aerial blunder but they see more than ever the need to stick together. Mr. Khrushchev may have overplayed his hand. He has gone home with cries of "treachery" ringing in his ears.

There are speculations now that he may be to some extent controlled by the Russian die-hards of the Stalin school. Mr. Khrushchev is not a Stalin; he wields less power. He may have been compelled to reverse his recent soft approaches and turn truculent. Whatever the real motive it is obvious the Kremlin did not want the summit conference to succeed. It is the brutal manner in which he wrecked the meeting however that gives deep concern.

This means of course a return to the most perilous days of the cold war. The Paris collapse has revived the most sombre forebodings. The approaches that seemed recently to presage some easement and a measure of agreement have been illusory. Russia has been leading the West along the garden path.

There can be small hope now of disarmament. The trend may be exactly the opposite, since fears have been revived and the cold war is as intense as ever it was. More so, since Mr. Khrushchev has offered an affront that won't readily be forgotten. It disclosed his or his regime's real intentions. These patently do not include any concordance with the West.

The summary wrecking of the long-sought summit meeting permits of no other conclusion. It was a cold-blooded proposition from the start. With the spy-plane incident as an excuse Mr. Khrushchev left Moscow bent on disruption. But it seems now that if it had not been the spy-plane it would have been something else.

All Too Brief

THE first official visit of His Excellency and Mrs. Vanier ended for Victoria yesterday under clear and sunny skies. For two brief days they were the guests of Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross and Mrs. Ross at Government House, received warm provincial, civic and garrison welcomes, and left an indelible impression on the community by their graciousness and charm. Governor-General Vanier, by declaring "the Queen's holiday" in the schools, has helped to make the occasion a memorable one for all children in the province.

Improvement in the weather yesterday showed Victoria at its best. The departure of the Vice-Regal party on board HMCS Fraser saw re-enacted the warmth of the city's welcome, with a concourse of people assembled at every vantage point along the waterfront. Garrison forces contributed to three outstanding events in the official program; including the Royal Canadian Navy's review in miniature on the Governor-General's arrival; continuing with the superb parade of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry's honor guard at the Citizenship Day ceremonies; and enlivened by the flypast of Comox squadrons of the RCAF at the beginning and end of the visit.

On the occasions when he spoke, His Excellency kept before the public the image of a free Canada, loyal to Her Majesty the Queen and burgeoning with the vigor and growth of its own potential. His interest and that of Mrs. Vanier manifestly was in people; from war veterans standing quietly at the side of official ceremonies, to the smallest of school children with posies in their hands to decorate a statue.

His Excellency exemplified the traditional charm and eloquence deriving from the French Canadian roots which have contributed so much to the nation. One trusts that this pathfinding visit may be only the first of others to come in due course and season.

Holidaying in Safety

WITH the boating season about to commence and every prospect that there may be more small boats in operation in local waters than before, the advice of the RCMP in this connection is worth keeping in mind. Everyone in charge of a boat should know the rules of marine traffic for powered and unpowered craft; minimum safeguards for the number of people in the boat; and the general safety margins in all boating beyond which it is not prudent to venture.

Many of the basic requirements have been codified in law, with obligation on the boat owner to see that they are met. Beyond that, however, what makes sense on the public highway is also sound practice in most instances on the sea lanes. Never press a borderline advantage; don't dispute a marginal right-of-way; give other craft a fair opportunity at all times. These things are discussed in the form of several handy booklets easily obtainable from the retail trade, along with the detail of marine course markers and other signs which should be followed.

The unwritten part of the pastime no doubt is something that comes through experience. The barometer has to be watched. A short, simple voyage possible on almost any day in the year may prove dangerous under certain conditions of wind and tide, however rare. Most boat owners prefer to be home by nightfall, unless specially prepared for that.

The first rule at sea, as anywhere, is to play it safe and thereby enjoy the benefits of a carefree, happy outing. When trouble arises it can come fast. No one should abandon a capsize rowboat in an effort to swim ashore, unless certain of that result. Resuscitation of the drowning is a useful, almost necessary art to know. A cool head and commonsense will surmount most difficulties, but they need to be used throughout and not only when disaster happens.

Interpreting the News

Political Timing Good

By STEWART McLEOD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WHATEVER the political implications of Russia's spaceship launching—and everyone seems willing to concede that Khrushchev has gained notable yardage in psychological warfare—the scientific significance is not so easily weighed.

Undoubtedly, it is no mean achievement to hurl a 4½-ton spaceship into a perfect political orbit, and the rocket that fired it clearly rates attention as a devastating military weapon, but in scientific exploration of space there isn't the same degree of agreement.

British scientists, watching the space race with detached objectivity, used such terms as "staggered" and "amazed" to describe their reaction to the launching of the huge satellite, but they weren't so quick to suggest Russia is necessarily winning the race to put a man into orbit. And that, at the moment, seems to be the ultimate goal.

It has been recognized for some time that Russia is capable of sending a man spinning around the earth, but the problem remains of getting him back alive. "The new spaceship apparently doesn't solve it. The Russians themselves say it will burn up when it re-enters the earth's atmosphere."

Until this problem is solved, say experts, it is anyone's race, regardless of the size of satellites. But there is a general feeling that Russia is well in the lead. The spaceship, quite apart from the re-entry problem, lends a great deal of weight to the belief. What seems most impressive is the remarkable reliability of Russia's high-powered rockets. Even allowing for failures—they are never disclosed—the Russians have made the crucial ones count.

On Jan. 2 last year, Soviet scientists shot a rocket past the moon, two days before Anastas Mikoyan arrived in Washington. Last Sept. 13 the Lunik rocket hit the moon, two days before Khrushchev hit Washington. Now comes the pre-summit spaceship—or is it spaceman-ship?

Thinking Aloud

Gerald Waring

"... of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings."
By TOM TAYLOR

IN an eastern paper a letter-writer bemoans the price-tag that publicly was attached to Canada's wedding gift to Princess Margaret. It is not polite, the writer says, that the recipient should learn the price one pays for a present.

Neither it is, and this is why most people making a gift to anyone care-fully rub out the price label or remove it. In some instances the idea might be to hide the modest sum that was spent but generally it's a gesture of courtesy.

A gift after all is a matter of sentiment, not price.

Politeness, one fears, is on the downgrade. The jet age has little time for the graces of more leisureed days. It forgets that "the small courtesies sweeten life; the greater ennoble it," as someone has said.

We've had a fine illustration of this in the Khrushchev summit bomb-shell. By the time this appears they will all be on the road home and the atmosphere is soured.

Rudeness is hard to take, especially in public. Eisenhower has genial blood in his veins but it would be no wonder if it hasn't now turned to ice. And doesn't melt easily.

Public discourtesy is more deadly than private. A person can lick his wounds when no one else knows; few can stand insult broadcast around the world.

Politeness, too, was once the essence of diplomacy, even if fine language could drape a subtle barb. There was no open display of bad manners.

And, of course, courtesy invites courtesy in return and thus there was less warrant for diplomats and leaders to be rude to each other.

And even if on occasion they felt like venting their spleen and talking tough, and impolitely, no great harm was done. It was a private donnybrook and the world never heard of it. Not until somebody wrote his memoirs years later, and by that time the quarrel was academic.

Why rave and rant, anyway, when the meeting is in camera.

Unfortunately when the admonition of Shakespeare is not heeded—"keep a good tongue in your head"—and the meeting is broadcast, then immense damage is done. Whole nations, backing their own men, feel rudely towards each other.

This is one of the less happy results of the postwar "open diplomacy." It has other drawbacks: opinions expressed harden into attitudes lest change be thought weakness; the pros and cons are seldom conceded; a conference becomes a debate, not an attempt to give and take.

Lester Pearson, who has experience of both types of diplomacy, has regretted the open shop as a method of achieving amity or understanding. He would prefer that heads of state or their representatives meet in private, with no one peeping over their shoulder.

This policy was abandoned for fear of "secret" agreements that later landed some nation in trouble, although the cure seems to be worse than the disease.

Certainly it is much more impolite, and the consequence is a never-ending public wrangle.

Real diplomacy would deal in honey, not vinegar.

Reports from Ottawa

AS the defence expenditures committee of Parliament studies the Bomarc fiasco, one question it might well ask is, how did we get sucked into this mess?

Was it the man-kind-old lure of something for nothing? Was it the parsimony of a government that on a per capita basis spends only a third as much on defence as the U.S.? Was it our national inferiority complex, a feeling that anything we can do, the Americans can do better?

Probably the committee will think, rightly enough, that it isn't as important to know how we got into the mess as to know how we will get out of it. But I suggest that the first question is worth some consideration, if only to expose errors of judgment fully so we will be less likely to make them again.

The U.S. agreed to pay two-thirds of the cost of the Bomarc substitute for the Arrow, and a few weeks ago it was officially stated that the cost to Canada would be a mere $15 million. The Bomarc was money for jam, something for nothing, air defence for peanuts.

But the something you get for nothing often turns out to be more of the same: nothing. If the U.S. can't do the Bomarc, the air defences of Canada will then consist of the CF-100—plus, of course, whatever the U.S.A.F. might have to spare from defending U.S. targets.

Fifteen months ago Prime Minister Diefenbaker stated that "The government has taken no decision to acquire other aircraft to replace the CF-100, which is still an effective weapon in the defence of North America against the present bomber threat." That still appears to be government policy.

Officially the CF-100 is rated as "subsonic," which means less than 760 mph at sea level. I asked the RCAF if a fair guess would actually be 650 mph. "That might be a little high," I was told.

On April 25 a TCA DC8 jet flew from Vancouver to Montreal in three hours and 57 minutes, for an average speed of 600 mph. So a CF-100 would have difficulty catching a TCA jet, to say nothing of a Russian bomber of late design.

The late Liberal government permitted our defence scientists to spend $25 millions on developing the Velvet Glove missile. As an example of what Canadian scientists can do, the result was encouraging. But then the government terminated missile research. The Glove didn't meet the RCAF's changing needs, but the cost and the tremendous U.S. missile research program also were important factors.

Having counted our pennies and decided the Americans could do it better, we are now squarely behind the Bomarc B 8-ball. Where do we go from here?

The Packsack

OF GREGORY CLARK

A FRIEND who owns a convertible car took me for a top-down drive through the downtown district, and as we poked our way through the traffic I was conscious of a strange nostalgic feeling. Something long ago and far away was trying to make itself remembered. I mentioned my sensation to my friend. "It's the double-decker buses in London," he said, "where you sat on the open top deck in the old days before they closed them in..."

That was it, sure enough. For here, in the open car, I could see something more than the old familiar first floor only of all my native city. I could see the first floors up, and the faces of the buildings.

For all their skyscrapers and tall handsome structures, modern cities are largely ground floor communities. In their closed cars, in bus and street car or on foot, all the city passer-by is conscious of are the windows of the street level. The big department stores, eight, ten storeys high, put all their display at street level, since nobody ever looks up, even to the second storey, where all they would see would be packing cases, jumbles of merchandise hastily flung on window sills, and the backs of employees doing something humdrum such as fitting a dress on an unseen dummy.

But in London, in the good old open double-decker days, second storey property was just as valuable, for display purposes, as the costly ground floor.

Spaniards Who Got Lost

From the Brantford Examiner

MANY a tourist who has stayed in that pleasant and leisurely city of Cork, in the Republic, has been struck by its similarity, in atmosphere and habits, to a Spanish town.

This is not surprising, according to some learned students of such matters. For they assert that the Irish are simply Spaniards who got lost, long in the past, and strayed northward to the Emerald Isle.

One of the most eminent among the holders of this theory is Professor Salvador de Madariaga, Spanish man of international affairs, philosopher and writer.

"Let us give a well-deserved rest," he sagely advises, "to those stories about Spanish sailors from the Armada who are supposed to have populated every cove in Ireland, where girls are temperamental and bright-eyed (i.e. every cove in Ireland). Most of the Spaniards who landed were speedily dispatched to the other world anyhow. The Irish needed no Spanish sailors to be as Spanish as they can be... though not quite as Spanish as they should be, for, with all that stay-in-doors weather, the Irishman grows a conscience and thinks about all kinds of things people need not trouble about in a good climate..."

Trams in Samarkand

By CASSANDRA

SAMARKAND — We incurable romantics have a hard time of it. In our hearts we treasure the thought of certain places that are iridescent with charm and mystery. Star dust gets in our eyes.

Waikiki Beach (complete with surfboards), Innisfree (complete with bee-loud glade), Capri (complete with Gracie Fields), Lhasa (now incomplete without the Dalai Lama) and Samarkand.

Samarkand! The name is fragrant and sweet with the smell of strange and far-off places. It lies way down in Central Asia, not far from Afghanistan.

There ruled the Great Emperor Tamerlane.

There was the ancient Silk Road that threaded its way through the Orient to China.

Of Samarkand the Prophets said: "In all other parts of the world light descends upon earth. From Holy Samarkand it ascends."

And James Elroy Flecker put a diadem of words upon it when he wrote of The Golden Journey to Samarkand:

"... We shall go
Always a little further:
It may be,
Beyond that last blue mountain barred with snow,
Across that angry or that glimmering sea."

I was ready for Samarkand, and as it turned out Samarkand was ready for me.

The place shimmered in my mind. I was a worshipper before I got there. I could see great turquoise mosques blazing and glittering in the brilliant sunlight.

I could hear the splashing of fountains.

I knew of the fiercely colored, tropical flowers, the humming birds, the ancient, tessellated pavements and the grave, devout people. I knew the legendary tales of Alexander the Great who took The Golden Journey to Samarkand and of Scheherazade herself.

It was here in Samarkand that she spent her thousand and one nights.

Now I must tell you.

And if you hear a dull thud like warmed-up putty falling on a fishmonger's slab next to the dead eye of a leering codfish, that is my dream coming to a full stop.

There are trams in Samarkand.

There are no humming birds in the brilliant sunlight and for most of the time it has been belting with rain in the best Sunday-afternoon-in-Oldham-style.

There are no humming birds. Only pigeons.

There is one fountain—dismally squirting in the rain.

The grave, devout people are quite cheerful, thank you, and—as good Communists—they are not devout at all.

As for the light ascending from Holy Samarkand, it may do for all I know, but today it would have a nasty tussle with the rain descending in vertical stair-roads.

Certainly I will agree that Alexander the Great was here, but I have also discovered that it was in Samarkand that he murdered a chap called Clitus—maybe the guy recommended the place to him.

As for Scheherazade spending a thousand and one nights here, I feel that the indoor attractions must have been very good, for the weather alone sends you to bed.

The most famous mosque, built of mud, is falling down, and there are better ones in Cairo.

Tamerlane's Tomb, which is called the Gur Emir, is impressive—if you impress easily. The Great Mongol, did himself proud in death as well as in life, but that did not prevent some scientific inquirer from digging him up, establishing that he was a short little chap very close to the ground, had a withered right hand and died of tuberculosis.

That is no way to treat a per-manently retired gentleman who had these thunderous words inscribed on his tombstone: "Were I alive today mankind would tremble."

I wonder whether James Elroy Flecker, who wrote "The Golden Journey to Samarkand" was ever here.

I was there. Maybe Kilroy was there, too. But if Mr. Flecker ever really did get that far, then I think he ought to have his poetic licence taken away from him.

That liquefaction of her clothes!

Trained Staff

Please allow me space to correct an impression which was caused by certain evidence given to the jury during the recent inquest into the death of the late Const. Kirby of the Saanich police.

A witness, under cross-examination, stated that to his knowledge there is no academic qualification for psychiatric nurses. This is definitely not the case. Grade 10 education is mandatory and Grade 12 preferred. The course of training was of three years' duration until about eight years ago, when it became an accelerated two-year course. Subjects taught are nursing arts, anatomy and physiology, pharmacology, psychiatry, psychiatric nursing, first aid, ward management. Examinations are both written and practical. In order to practice psychiatric nursing it is necessary to complete this course, pass the examinations, register with the registrar of psychiatric nurses and acquire a licence annually from the provincial government. In short, professional recognition has been given by law.

This program was applied to all psychiatric nurses in 1948 and in order to avoid penalizing long and faithful service, a few senior members of the provincial mental health services' nursing staff were granted licences following a very much abbreviated course of training. The majority of these have since retired on superannuation and a very few remain, mostly in positions where technical nursing knowledge is not of very great importance when experience and administrative ability exist.

Our organization, the B.C. Psychiatric Nurses' Association, is now nearly 900 strong and is affiliated through the Canadian Council of Psychiatric Nurses with similar organizations in Alberta and Saskatchewan, where similar status is recognized by law. We expect to be joined soon by the province of Manitoba.

This is written to correct an erroneous impression which was read by many people, and to remind the public that their friends and relations who are undergoing treatment for mental disorders are being cared for by trained staff.

R. LIVESSEY, President.
H. GOAD, Secretary.
Colquitz Chapter B.C. Psychiatric Nurses' Assoc.

A Drag Strip

Victoria came a step closer to having a drag strip with the success of the Quarter Milers Autorama to Jazz, 1960.

As chairman of the show committee I owe a large debt of thanks to a great many people for a tremendous amount of help. To the newspaper, who gave us such complete coverage, to the many people who were connected with the show as competitors, performers or hard-working, unpaid club members, to Mr. W. S. Oliver and his staff at the Curling Club, and especially to the many people who paid to see our show.

Myself and the Quarter Milers thank these kind people.

DARYL R. FOSTER,
Show Committee Chairman.

Change the Spirit

Much has been written of the Caryl Chessman case, etc. Justice, however, involves an element of forbearance where the accused becomes a victim in his own right, of the criminal spirit propagated by man.

Removal of the individual doesn't kill the spirit! How can you execute something intangible? Death has been meted out for centuries, yet crime continues. Change the spirit and you won't have crime! As it is, man himself is the arch criminal.

Good and evil in themselves cast no shadow. Only when personified do they become evidence for judgment! Man must be born again, out of his shadows, if he would enjoy resurrection. Hating evil is ineffective; love obliterates its shadow. I sometimes wish the world would grow up!

The Little Leaguers

The article, re Little League baseball in Oak Bay, upset our household as this is one of the finest organizations to curb juvenile delinquency that there is.

These same people would complain a lot more if these boys were running the streets, but they seem to forget they were once children themselves and maybe they had lots of room to play on the prairies but this is a city now and energetic boys need an outlet.

I'm almost ashamed to say I live in the same city with people so small-minded that they won't give these future residents of Victoria a chance.

Little League baseball is not just to teach these youngsters how to play ball, but to make them respect the word of sport and also to build their minds and bodies so they will be men worthy of the title.

Maybe they should give it a little support and go out and see what goes on at these practices and games. I'll guarantee that the majority will go back, as some of these boys are pretty good ball players and put on a good show.

Music, Not Knees

I am amazed at some of the remarks regarding how we should welcome visitors to our lovely city during the summer months. Some want a bit of Old England. One gentleman suggests two Mounted Policemen complete with horses. Still another wants a knobby-kneed Scot with bagpipes. In the first place we don't need any more of Old England. We see it every day all over the city, and we are very proud of it too. Secondly the R.C.M.P. can be better employed. As for the knobby-kneed Scot, I don't know what this gentleman means, unless he is trying to be sarcastic.

However, I am in agreement with those who want to give a rousing welcome to our visitors. We could have our school bands alternate, and if a piper is wanted, I would suggest, a young person, either girl or boy. We are very rich in splendid young pipers here in Victoria.

It is now six years since I came to live in Victoria, after 40 years in a Prairie city, and I well remember the afternoon we stepped ashore. Yes, the pipes were playing—but despite the fact I have been playing pipes for more years than I care to mention, both my wife and myself were more interested in the beauty of the Legislative building, the Empress Hotel, and the lovely gardens than we were in the piper. On the other hand, when I want to listen to the pipes it's the music I am interested in, and not the knees of the performer, whether they are knobby, dimpled, or otherwise.

Age-Old Law Useless

May I suggest that the Marshall and Mr. Bitterman and everyone else who thinks along the same line, read: "Capital punishment is not the answer" in the May issue of the Reader's Digest. The author, Mr. Ernest Havemann, sums up the reasons why nine U.S. states and some 40 foreign countries have already concluded that the age-old law is barbaric and useless.

And for those who are referring to their Bibles, that must be one which does contain either the Ten Commandments or the "Our Father."

Indians Want Land

Nothing to Offer

OTTAWA (CP)—The joint Commons-Senate committee on Indian affairs heard a plea yesterday that Indians be allowed to possess their reserve land outright and thus be able to use it as collateral for loans.

Elliott Moses, 71-year-old Indian from the Six Nation reserve near Brantford, Ont., also told the committee young Indians are moving to the city because the reserve has nothing to offer them by way of jobs or a future.

As it is now, said Mr. Moses, the regulations treat Indians like children. Indian businessmen did not have the right to put up their land as collateral under present regulations. They could get small loans, but not big business loans of $3,000 or more.

He also said most Indian girls from his reserve marry white men whom they meet in cities like Hamilton, Buffalo, Windsor or Detroit where they go to earn their living.

Most of these girls were attractive and intelligent. Almost all married "a very decent kind of white boy." But when they did so, they lost their band membership and their rights as Indians.

He found it ridiculous "that a young Indian girl cannot choose a particular form of life without being penalized."

Two Issues Settled

Plane Incident Helped Mr. K. At Home, Abroad

A world-famous writer on Communism, Isaac Deutscher was himself a prominent Polish Communist until he broke with Stalin in 1925. In addition to many books, his syndicated articles have been published in the press throughout the world. He has been a world news analyst on such London papers as The Economist and The Observer. This is the last of four articles.

By ISAAC DEUTSCHER

The demonstration of the defensive power of Soviet rocketry in shooting down the U-2 (if it did), was useful for Khrushchev domestically.

It has helped him in his argument against those who have opposed his whittling down of the conventional forces and have held that he has allowed himself to be carried away by enthusiasm for rocketry.

The missile that he said brought down the American pilot was also to administer a shock to conservative military thinking at home.

It produced a fitting accompaniment to the eclipse of some of the glorious marshals of the last war and to the setting up of a new Strategic Rocket Command under Marshal Nedelin.

STRONGER POSITION

Finally, the incident also served to strengthen Khrushchev's position vis-à-vis Peking. The controversy between Peking and Moscow had become very acute in April.

So much so that during Anastas Mikoyan's visit to Iraq, Chinese representatives there almost openly displayed their hostility toward Soviet policy, while Mikoyan publicly expressed misgivings about the presence of an Algerian "governmental delegation" in Peking.

TWO LENINS

The controversy reached its climax during the celebration of Lenin's 90th birthday, which was turned into a dispute over the principles of Communist foreign policy. The image of Lenin presented in Peking was the exact opposite of the image presented in Moscow.

Moscow glorified Lenin as the ardent peacemaker and far-sighted promoter of peaceful co-existence. The propagandists referred to an article, never quoted before, by Krupskaya, Lenin's widow, who related that Lenin once said that a day would come when a weapon would be invented of such devastating force as to make war impossible. This day, Moscow propagandists concluded, has arrived.

CLASS WARRIOR

Peking presented quite a different Lenin: Lenin the class warrior, who always made the distinction between just and unjust wars, who did not believe in any lasting accommodation between imperialism and socialism, and who insisted that war is inevitable as long as imperialism is alive.

Peking claimed that only "revisionists and traducers of Leninism" could portray Lenin as a simple-minded pacifist. Moscow argued that only "incorrigible dogmatists" could go on dwelling on Lenin's statements about the inevitability of imperialist wars, and ignore nuclear technology as a "factor of peace compelling even the most stupid imperialists to reckon with the fact that war would be their suicide."

Khrushchev's attack on American policy and the use he made of the incident with the American pilot must have gone some way to clear him from the taint of appeasement even in Peking's eyes. And so he was able simultaneously to strengthen his hand at the abortive summit meeting and silence critics within the Soviet bloc.

Art to Angling

Here's fisherman who never goes home empty-handed. If fishing is poor but scenery attractive,

Pennsylvania commercial artist Horace Hand sets aside rod and picks up paint brush.

City Team Opens Saturday

Inter-City Ball Reborn

Regular intercity baseball of the extensive juvenile base returns to Victoria on Saturday with the first game of the day with the first games in the Victoria and District Amateur League. It should provide the collection of veterans and promising youngsters being coached by Art Worth with a real test.

Victoria's entry into the league is the culmination of long-range plans made some time back to have a top outlet for the players coming out of the Victoria State club.

Washington State champions last year, for games at 2.30 and 7.30.

Other clubs in the Northern section of the league are Sedro-Woolley, the well-known Cheney Studs, Tacoma's Woodworth Construction and Birdlands, a colored Seattle entry.

In the Southern section are Centralia and Aberdeen, two towns which have always had excellent semi-pro clubs, an Army team from Fort Lewis which can be expected to have some fine talent, and Wenatchee.

TWO TRIPS

Each of the nine clubs will play two games in Victoria with Bellingham and Cheney Studs making two trips for a 22-game home schedule for Pages. Sedro-Woolley will be the second club to visit, playing a doubleheader a week from Saturday.

Opening day ceremonies will feature Joe Budnick, league president, and, possibly, Bob Freitas, general manager of the Vancouver Mounties. The Mounties are planning to keep an eye on the Victoria club in hopes of uncovering a prospect for professional baseball and Freitas has been invited to attend the opening doubleheader.

NOT FIXED

Worth, who will play when needed, has selected 16 players for the first game but his lineup is by no means fixed for the season. He will be able to draw players from the four-team city senior league, and will if anyone should show the ability to move into faster company.

Pages have a veteran catching staff and a young pitching staff. Worth can choose between Lyle Cornett and Jim Moody for behind-the-plate action and he has named right-hander George Brice to pitch the opening game.

His other pitchers include left-hander Des Mosley, most valuable player in the senior league last season, and right-hander Harold Jacobson, Gerry Booth, Keith Todd and Steve Bishop.

Two veterans—second baseman Mike Hodge and shortstop Stu Mitchell—and two youngsters—first baseman Dave Black and third baseman Barry Harvey—will make up the starting infield. Harvey has come all the way up from the Little League.

CAN BE SHIFTED

Gary Bishop, Ron Karadimis and Gerry Parker are the outfielders and Worth and Ricki Blake the utilitymen. Parker and Karadimis both have had infield experience and can be shifted while Worth has seen a lot of action at first-base as well as on the mound.

Bells are managed by Sam Smith and the well-known veteran, Andy Padovani, will be along as coach. They are reported to be at least the equal of the club which won the State semi-pro title last season with a line-up which includes a fine pitching staff and some power hitters.

It will also be "Family Day" at Royal Athletic Park with the admission charge of one dollar entitling a whole family to attend.

Tourney Winds Up Junior Golf Clinic

The Victoria district junior golf courses come to an end Friday when 188 of the youngsters who have been taking the lessons take part in a competition sponsored by the Hudson's Bay Company.

The boys will play at Gorge Vale—36 in the advanced group, and 67 in the beginners—and the girls at Uplands.

Play will start after school and it is hoped to get everyone in by shortly after 8 o'clock.

Kenny Lawson, chairman of the local course, has arranged that the advanced boys will play the first nine holes at Gorge Vale, while the beginners will play five holes of the back nine.

At Uplands the girls will play the first six holes.

The Hudson's Bay prizes are to be distributed in two age groups as well as providing prizes for the more experienced players with handicaps.

The presentation of prizes will follow the competition, and there will be hot dogs and soft drinks for all competitors.

Biggest problem of fishermen today is the diminishing access to the best fishing spots, and yet some sportsmen never seem to learn.

Malicious damage done recently in the Sooke district is threatening closure of Grassy, Shields and Crabapple Lakes. Access to these lakes is controlled by B.C. Forest Products, which this year has not stopped anglers from fishing the lakes, but that privilege will wear off if it is not respected.

To reach these lakes go up Harbor View Road at Saseenos. It is about six miles straight ahead to Shields and five miles up the road there is a fork, left goes to Grassy and right to Crabapple. You can drive within 100 yards of Shields, but you have to walk about one-half mile to reach Grassy and Crabapple.

All three have produced trout for the Colonist King Fisherman contest.

And still on malicious damage: To the Victoria person who dumped garbage in the picnic area at Dougan's Lake a couple of months ago... officials found a bottle of pills in the garbage with your name on it. The pills were picked up by a youngster who was caught before he started eating them.

This weekend really marks the start in earnest of the outdoor season on Vancouver Island.

Easter weekend acts as a conditioner for the more hardy outdoorsmen and activity builds up steadily after that. But on the Victoria Day holiday weekend there is a regular onslaught on the outdoors.

Outdoor and alpine clubs on Vancouver Island have set the Forbidden Plateau as their target for a camping weekend. Butte Lake will be the target for hundreds of fishermen and reports indicate fishing in Butte Lake and the Campbell Lakes is reaching its prime.

Becher Bay Marina now has a 100 foot long and 20 foot wide concrete launching ramp with easy access. Weather has been too stormy for recent reports from Sooke, Becher Bay, Pedder Bay, Victoria waterfront and Oak Bay waterfront, but the big ones were in and still should be.

Up-Island resorts have their launching ramps in readiness for the big weekend and George Bates reports the Courtenay-Campbell River area is producing some good springs as well as jack springs and bluebacks. The bluebacks are still being taken aplenty off Clayson-Crofton area, especially in Poyler Pass is still hot for limit catches of blueback. Al Dyer and Cy Shillito were among those limiting. Mrs. J. McMorran of Crofton reports blueback fishing fairly good in the Booth Bay area off Salt Spring directly opposite Crofton. The summer run of steelhead is on its way up the Chemainus River and Louis Holman of Chemainus caught two in the Copper Canyon area Sunday.

Game wardens report Durrance Lake fishing poor, but San Juan River good with roe and Prospect, Beaver and Shawanigan fair. Nanaimo Lakes are producing well, but other lakes in Nanaimo area have been only fair. Cowichan River has been fair to poor on worm, but Cowichan Lake, B-ar Lake and Quamichan Lake have been good on lake troll and worm. Dougan's Lake good on worm. Somenos Lake and Koksilah River are fair. Little Qualicum River is reported good on fly. Sproat Lake good on troll and spinning. Great Central good on troll. Cameron Lake fair on troll and fly. Somass, Sproat, Stamp, Ash and China Creek are all reported fair.

Two Extra Champs Records Tumble At Mount View

Six records were broken and six champions instead of the expected four were produced during Mount View High School's annual track and field meet which was completed yesterday.

Champions were the result of close competition in both the senior boys' and senior girls' divisions.

Bill Gray and Grant Udy both ended with 19 points in the senior boys' competition. Gray won the shot put with a record toss of 41½ feet, the discus throw and the 440 yards while placing second in the 100 yards.

Udy set a record of five feet, eight inches for the high jump, also won the 880 yards and mile races as well as placing second in the hop, step and jump.

Right behind the co-champions was Gary Cooper, who set a new record of 22.5 seconds in the 220 yards and also won the 100 yards and the hop, step and jump.

The fourth boys' record set was in the pole vault, which was won by Larry Brooks with a leap of nine feet, seven inches.

Brenda Kraeker and Ruth Ford share senior girls' honors with 17 points each. Miss Ford set a new record of 28.6 seconds in the 220 yards and a new mark of 28 feet, two and a half inches in the shot put. She also tied for second place in the high jump and placed second in the 100 yards.

Miss Kraeker won the 60 and 100 yards dashes and the high jump and picked up two third places for her final total. Miss Ford was third once.

Second Win For Hearts

MONTREAL (CP)—Heart of Midlothian Wednesday night defeated Montreal Concordia 2-0 in an exhibition soccer game before an estimated crowd of 5,000 under the lights at Delorimier baseball stadium.

Second-half goals by inside-right Bobby Blackwood and inside-left Ian Crawford gave Hearts their second victory over Canadian opposition. Monday night they defeated Montreal Cantalia 3-0 in Ottawa.

CFL Should Be Worried

Workman Sounds Alarm

MONTREAL (CP)—President Ted Workman of Montreal Alouettes Wednesday night chided the Canadian Football League for lack of concern over possible extension of American leagues into Canadian cities.

Commenting on a New York report that the new American Football League is to consider entry applications from Montreal and Toronto, Mr. Workman said:

"There is no question that some day the CFL will be threatened by moves such as are being mentioned now."

WON'T CONSIDER

Mr. Workman said the CFL has always refused to spend time to consider the implications of external forces that might affect the east's Big Four Football League and the five-team Western Football Conference.

"Anything without a plan for the future is doomed to be intruded upon by more volatile and vital parties," he said. Such is the position of the CFL at this time.

TORONTO (CP)—Lew Hayman, general manager of Toronto Argonauts of the Big Four Football League, said Wednesday he is not worried about the possibility of competition from American Football League teams in Toronto.

"As far as we are concerned this is a democracy and anybody can do anything they wish," said Hayman. "It is no concern of ours if anybody wants to join in the AFL."

NOT LIKELY

The Argos' manager said he does not consider it likely that American football games will draw crowds away from the Big Four games.

"The AFL has to prove itself as a league first. This will only be determined after they have completed several seasons."

"We are not at all alarmed."

NEW YORK (AP)—A. J. Bennett, Toronto real estate man, made formal application for a franchise in the American Football League Wednesday.

RETAIN CUP
GLASGOW (Reuters)—Real Madrid of Spain retained the European inter-club soccer cup by beating Eintracht Frankfurt of West Germany 7-3 before a capacity crowd of 135,000 at Hampden Park here Wednesday night.

Cambridge All Out For 192

CAMBRIDGE, England (Reuters)—The South African touring cricket team dismissed Cambridge for 192 runs in the first innings of an exhibition match Wednesday.

John Waite, South African wicketkeeper, retired with an injured thumb while batting, and Chris Duckworth was out for three before poor light stopped play 45 minutes early, with the tourists 11 for one.

Other matches:

At Lords, London: MCC 302 (N. Hill 120 vs. Essex).
At the Oval, London: Sussex 227 for four (E. Dexter 104 vs. Surrey).
At Oxford: Lancashire 108, Oxford University 165 for three.
At Llanelli: Glamorgan 287, Derbyshire 47 for two.
At Bristol: Gloucestershire 112, Leicestershire 128 for three.
At Birmingham: Warwickshire 282, Hampshire 44 for one.
At Worcester: Worcestershire 156, Kent 127 for four.
At Hull: Yorkshire 289 for nine declared (D. Padgett 130), Somerset 19 for one.

Ed Perkins Upsets Rossi

CHICAGO (AP)—Unranked Eddie Perkins of Chicago, applying pressure all the way, scored a unanimous 10-round decision Wednesday night over heavily-favored Paolo Rossi of Bronx, N.Y. No. 2 contender for the world lightweight boxing title.

There were no knockdowns, but Perkins built his edge by an aggressive attack which caused Rossi to miss badly and often.

2 OUT OF 5 CARS ON THE ROAD TODAY HAVE UNSAFE TIRES!

HOW SAFE ARE YOUR TIRES?

During sustained periods of high speed driving the bald tire you were meaning to replace may give out; or the cut in the sidewall may give way under the continuous flexing as your tires roll along the highway. And in an emergency, it's the brakes that stop the wheels, but the tires that stop your car!

Of all accidents due to tire failure by far the largest percentage is caused by baldness and uneven tread wear. Don't take a chance. Check your tires now!

CHECK THESE TIRE DANGER SIGNS

BALD TREAD
Don't plan a long trip with bald tires! Smooth tread gives no skid protection and the small amount of tread rubber remaining means less protection against blow-outs.

UNEVEN TREAD WEAR
This indicates wheels out of alignment, brake trouble, or other faulty mechanical condition. Uneven tread results in faster wear and can cause an annoying "thump."

PUNCTURES
Always have punctures expertly repaired. A faulty repair may lead to moisture rot of fabric. Flexing and heat build-up during high speed driving may lead to blowouts.

CUTS AND BRUISES
You seldom remember when you hit a stone or pothole, or get a small cut from a curb, broken glass. But these weakened areas are most prone to failure during sustained periods of driving.

If your tire shows any of these danger signs, don't delay another minute—come in immediately and have your tires inspected FREE.

Five Million Shares Trade At New York

NEW YORK (UPI) — The summit collapse signaled a rally in stocks, but the market failed to hold up under a late selling barrage and closed with only a small gain.

The international crisis and Premier Khrushchev's war threats triggered a run on the stocks of companies involved in defense work and military programs.

Heavy selling developed toward the close following a report from Washington that Defense Department recommendations before the Senate Military Appropriations Committee were unchanged from those submitted by the department before the summit collapse.

Some brokers say it was this news that sparked the late sell-off. The profit-taking spread to most sections of the list.

Trading soared to 5,240,000 shares, the most since Oct. 17, 1958, when 5,360,000 shares changed hands.

The market was active and strong at the opening. Reporting tickers fell behind floor transactions shortly after the opening until the tape cleared at 11:35 a.m. The market ran for a 40-minute period in the early afternoon and held up the close for about 14 minutes.

Steels, which improved with basic industries as chemicals, papers and coppers, finished firm but well below their highs.

Airports closed with improvement despite the late sell-off. Bond yield jumped 2 1/2 points. Douglas 2 1/2, Chance Vought 2 1/2, and General Dynamics 1 1/2.

Such defense electronics as Raytheon Texas Instruments added more than 1 and International Business Machines more than 3.

Garden Notes

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

I imagine many of my gardening friends will be making the big effort this weekend, buying their bedding-out annual flower plants and setting them out in the flower beds.

There are several different ways in which you can buy these plants. If you want a dozen petunias, for instance, the proprietor of the garden shop or stall will dig them out of a shallow box or "flat" and wrap them in several layers of newspaper to take home. Or, if you can use a fair number of petunias, he will sell you the whole flatful, box and all, to carry away.

Some dealers are offering their plants in smaller boxes of soil, containing eight to a dozen plants. Some kinds which resent root disturbance, such as cucumber and squash, are often sold in individual containers which may be wood veneer bands or the new consumable fibre plant pots. Some of the more expensive kinds, like geraniums and begonias, are sold in the conventional clay pots.

However you buy your plants, the keynote to successful planting lies in handling the plants with a minimum of root disturbance. The greatest risk lies in the dozen plants purchased out of a flat and, while these will grow away quite nicely if handled with sympathy, you can't just throw the newspaper-wrapped bundle in the back of the car and forget about it until Saturday afternoon. You are operating an ambulance, conveying injured patients from the scene of an accident—their uprooting from their flat of soil—and your job is to get them tucked up in bed and on the road to recovery as quickly as possible.

There isn't any such rush when you buy a whole flat of plants, but don't leave these for long in the trunk of the car with the sun blazing down. Get them into a cool shady place and water them daily until planted out.

Getting them out of the flat and into the ground poses certain problems, too. Plants suffer in transplanting from something similar to surgical shock, caused by the inevitable tearing away of the fine, invisible root hairs through which they feed and take in water to sustain life. The trick is to lift them and transport them to their planting holes with an absolute minimum of such root disturbance.

I never use a garden trowel to lift plants from a flat. First thing I do is to pry off one side of the box so I can insert a flat-bladed dinner knife under each plant to lift it. My own flats are made with wood screws instead of nails to facilitate the taking off of the side.

I score the soil with a sharp knife, just like cutting up a pan of gingerbread or Johnny cake. The squares of soil can then be lifted out with very little damage to the tiny root hairs.

Veneer plant bands and fibre pots can be set into the soil just as they are, where they will rot away, feeding the roots as they decompose. A little liquid fertilizer poured in while planting will speed up the process of decomposition.

Stopped Beating Your Wife?

There's a form of interview peculiar to television journalism which reached full flower on David Susskind's joust with Richard Nixon on WNTA the other night. President Roosevelt used to call this the "have you stopped beating your wife?" approach to an interview. But the questions on television are getting thornier, longer, and almost impenetrable to reasonable reply.

One of Mr. Susskind's shorter questions was: "Can we any longer afford to equate the democratic way with confusion and stupidity?" If I were Vice-President of the United States, I don't know how I'd answer that.

Nixon remained imperturbable in the face of questions which bordered narrowly on the downright rude. Of course, I don't want to be unfair. Television interviews have always faced the charge of being so bland and friendly that the interviews degenerated into little more than a plug for somebody's book or a play or maybe point of view. In an attempt to get some meat into interviews and to lean over backward to avoid this marshmallow school of journalism, a whole breed of tough questioners headed by Lawrence Spivak on "Meet the Press," Mike Wallace, and, most recently and only in some areas, Mr. Susskind on "Open End."

I love "Open End." The idea of a conversation unbounded by the clock has been a tremendously interesting experiment and has led to some very interesting conversations in depth (as well as a few windy, dull ones).

But it has also led to the further development—if such development were needed—of the interminable and hopelessly editorial question with a half dozen subordinate clauses, a built-in point of view, and the concealed antagonism of the questioner.

"Another question that seriously worries a great many people in the United States is that, in the face of the complete arrogance of President Eisenhower's reply to Khrushchev and in the light of the hopeless stupidity of state department in South America, and following the utter idiocy of the Republican administration at Suez and the total lack of any coherent policy in the Middle East..." That is fairly close to the tone of Susskind's questions and it's shorter than some of them which ran on and on, totally defying rational answer.

I'm not a Nixon man but I think he stood up fairly well under this provocative verbiage, and answered very reasonably. I think it was a great coup to get Nixon and I hope Mr. Susskind goes right out and gets Sen. Kennedy now, and asks him some equally tough questions.

Hollywood Today

Has Girl, Will Marry

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—Robert Horton has house, girl, and will marry—singer Marilyn Bradley, whom he first met in Ohio when she played the lead in "Guys and Dolls." They did the show together in Detroit, and Marilyn will be flying to London when the popular "Wagon Train" actor goes there.

the set at 9 a.m. Marilyn Monroe due at 10. She arrived at noon with husband Arthur Miller. Her first shot of the day was made at 4:17 p.m. After which Marilyn departed with Mr. Miller, in a chauffeured limousine, as per her contract. Actually, it doesn't seem to matter when Miss Monroe reports for work, as long as she reports.

Chatted with Freddie Bartholomew, whom I shall always remember as young "David Copperfield." Freddie is in Hollywood for the first time in 10 years. "I haven't acted for about seven years," said Freddie. "I'm with a top advertising agency, and I have three children of my own." He does not hanker for Hollywood.

Elizabeth Taylor, half owner of "Scent of Mystery," urged partner Mike Todd Jr. to release the picture without smellevision. It costs $50,000 to install the smell apparatus in each theatre. And the scent does not make that much difference to the story.

I didn't know that Steve Allen's mother, 75-year-old Belle Montrose, is an ex-trapeze artist and vaudeville until I also learned she will play Fred MacMurray's housekeeper in "The Absent-Minded Professor."

Frederico Fellini's orgiastic picture, "The Sweet Life," is the most talked-of in Rome. Starring Anita Ekberg, it will be dubbed into English and released in the U.S. in the Fall. An Italian official described the picture as a "murky fresco of a degraded, mislaid life." Not so, says Fellini—it's a reflection of true life!

Pretty Dolores Hart, who made two movies with Elvis Presley, visited him at Paramount and relayed. "Elvis looks very well, 15 pounds lighter, and two years in the army have made him more mature." Dolores is currently filming "The Plunderers" with Jeff Chandler.

LET'S TALK

By Rudolf Flesch

Marriage has been good for Barbara Rush. Her salary has doubled since she said "I do" to Warren Cowan last June.

There's a new paperback book of cartoon strips, "The Explainers" by Jules Feiffer, the man who did "Sick, Sick, Sick" a couple of years ago.

Richard Egan and wife Pat are off to Rome for "The Story of Esther," in which Dick plays King Ahasuerus. They would like Joan Collins for Esther, but she is reluctant to be separated from Warren Beatty.

If you're not already a Feiffer fan, this is your chance to join the club. This man is good; in fact, I think he's terrific. I would say that he is a comer, except that with "The Explainers" he clearly has arrived in a big way.

Tab Hunter is talking of selling his house and stables in Glendale, preferring to live 95 miles away—close to Santa Barbara. Tab's "Bachelor at Large" TV series was sold one hour after the agency showed it to the sponsors.

Feiffer's cartoon strips started as a feature in the (Greenwich) "Village Voice" and they're sophisticated all the way. But just because he's so close to the haunts of the high-brow, cocktail party, exurbanite set, he knows all there is to know about the way these people talk and all the nonsense they say. His ear is marvellous and he is merciless.

Bobby Darin's payment for guesting in the guest-laden "Pepe" was an expensive Cadillac.

Apathy Is Funny

Jackie Chan, the charming friend of Tony Armstrong-Jones, told me in London that she is very grateful to William Holden for his help while she worked in the movie version of "The World of Suzie Wong." "I was so nervous on the first day," said Jackie, who is half Russian, half Chinese. "I felt better when Mr. Holden came over and said, 'I saw your test and it was very good.'" Next for Jackie in the movie department is "Koolhaan," again for producer Ray Stark, and this will finally take the quiet, slender actress to the mainland of China.

There are probably some erry critics, Communists, liberals, psychoanalysis, modern dance, congressional committes, sex, literature and a hilarious bundle of other assorted matters.

June Havoc, who created quite a ruckus in England over her TV appearance to promote her book, "Early Havoc," has been visiting in Scotland, prior to returning to America to play the Geraldine Page part in that strange play by Tennessee Williams, "Sweet Bird of Youth."

Feiffer, I'm happy to say, is part of a trend. It seems clear by now that we're getting out of the apathetic trough of the 50's and that something new is starting up.

'Mad' Is Merry

Japanese Join Race to Space

TOKYO (Reuters)—Japan this year is officially entering the space age.

For the first time, funds have been set aside in the national budget for space research and under present plans multi-stage rockets built in Japan will be fired next year. The first Japanese earth satellite is scheduled to be fired either next year or in 1962.

There is a whole set of brilliant young comedians and humorists around, including Feiffer, Mort Sahl, Mike Nichols and Elaine May, Shelley Berman and the merry crew of "Mad" magazine. Then there are those two gloriously non-conformist elderly gentlemen, Harry Golden and Alexander King.

A great many things that used to be sacrosanct only yesterday, like President Eisenhower, Time or Reader's Digest, have suddenly turned into subject matter for

Swiss Reject 'Insult'

Break with Russia Over Spy Case?

BERN (UPI) — Switzerland yesterday rejected as "slandering" and "insulting" a Russian note protesting the expulsion of two Soviet embassy officials accused of spy activities in this neutral nation.

Russian Spy at UN Ousted During Khrushchev's Visit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. state department said Wednesday a Russian employee of the UN in New York "engaged in espionage activities" last September and was ordered by the UN to leave the country.

diplomatic relations," said a Basel newspaper.

The Swiss note replied to a Soviet note of May 13 charging that the arrest and expulsion of the two Russians was a "provocation" staged in connivance with the U.S.

The two men, embassy secretaries Borislav Modin and Ives Frol, were caught receiving secret information from a Soviet intelligence agent concerning U.S. bases in Germany and Swiss military installations.

"It goes without saying that the Swiss government does not intend to take measures against the police officials who were doing nothing but their duty," the note said.

The first self-binder operated on Western Canadian farms was produced in 1884.

Fulton Cites Rebrin Files

OTTAWA (CP)—The government has several files on Irene Rebrin, facing deportation at Vancouver as a stateless person, Justice Minister Fulton said yesterday. The RCMP also had a file on her.

He declined to identify the persons in the departments of immigration and justice who possess the files, or the dates of possession. That would be contrary to practice, he said in replying to a series of Commons questions by Frank Howard (CCF, Skeena).

Earlier this session, Miss Rebrin was described in the Commons by Immigration Minister Fairclough as a security risk. The woman, a lecturer in Russian at the University of British Columbia, has an appeal pending against the deportation order.

Yesterday, Mrs. Fairclough told Mr. Howard there are no statistics to show how many persons of Russian ethnic origin and born in Asia have been admitted to Canada since 1945. Miss Rebrin is in that category.

DEPARTMENT FILES

Mr. Fulton said the immigration department has several files on Miss Rebrin and the RCMP one.

IRENE REBRIN

In dealing with security cases, the departments concerned gathered all available information, the RCMP being the agency responsible for gathering and providing it.

Taxi Men Disagree

Confronted with a request from one group of taxi operators for a fare increase and opposition to an increase from another group, city council public works committee this week asked the two groups to get together to seek a compromise.

Ten companies asked for an increase in rates because of increasing costs.

They asked that the rates, now 55 cents for the first one-third mile and 10 cents for each additional one-third mile, be raised to 50 cents for the first one-quarter mile and 10 cents for each additional quarter.

Some Oppose Rate Boost

But two cab associations, each representing a substantial number of owner-operators, opposed an increase.

Works committee also recommended that council grant the request of residents of Chambers between Haultain and Kings that the name of the street in that section be changed. The residents suggested Oakridge, Ridgewood, Crestwood or Parkview Place.

The committee decided to meet soon to discuss with the city engineer, city manager and representatives of an interested firm the feasibility of contracting for street-lighting maintenance.

Forest fires cost B.C. more than $2,000,000 last year, Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston said yesterday in urging greater care by visitors to the province's forests this summer.

He said more than 2,000 fires reported last year burned over 274,000 acres of forests and caused damage estimated at $1,343,000. In addition, cost of fire fighting was $768,000.

Spotted by Scientists

Space Ship Eludes Camera

Victoria scientists yesterday sighted the Russian space vehicle as it flashed overhead, but failed in an attempt to photograph it because the sky was too bright. They will try again Friday.

This morning the five-ton satellite was scheduled to appear between 3.28 and 3.29 a.m. low in the southeast. But officials at the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory on Little Saanich Mountain said it will be too low to photograph.

It will appear Friday at 3.48 a.m. PDT at an elevation of about 45 degrees in the southeast and if the weather is clear another attempt will be made to photograph the space vehicle as it circles the earth 200 miles up.

Earlier, Dr. R. M. Petrie, observatory director, said the satellite was visible to the naked eye Wednesday morning.

Meanwhile, a University of Hawaii professor yesterday predicted an early and fiery death for the satellite. Prof. Ralph E. Partridge said the satellite is inside the atmosphere and "cannot last long."

Lodging for Paraders
Still a Big Problem

Billets of visiting bandsmen coming to Victoria for the big parade Monday are still a problem.

While almost all units are well established, there remained yesterday about 40 boys of the Everett, Wash., band who require billets for a night. If you can help, phone Mrs. Ethel Bishop at EV 2-3912.

Writ Served on City

Tax on Elevator
Taken to Court

Recovering

Works Minister W. N. Chant, who underwent surgery Monday in St. Joseph's Hospital, is reported to be making favorable progress. Nature of the operation was not stated.

Victoria Elevator Limited, unsuccessful in an attempt to have its Ogden Point elevator taken off the business tax assessment roll by a court of revision, is taking its case to the B.C. Supreme Court.

According to a writ served on the city yesterday, the company claims damages for alleged breach of fixed-assessment contracts with the city made in 1927 and 1953, an injunction against levying business tax on the property, and a declaration of exemption, by the contracts, from business tax.

The city's stand has been that the fixed-assessment contracts were for property taxation, and did not cover the business tax later introduced. Court of revision reduced the assessment of the grain elevator from $30,600 to $16,800, but found itself powerless to consider the question of law involved in the contracts, which now will come before the Supreme Court.

Post Office Service
Limited for Holiday

Victoria post office will operate on a holiday service basis on Victoria Day Monday.

There won't be any mail deliveries and only evening street letter box collections. Wicket service will be available from 10 a.m. until 12 noon, but the money and savings bank wicket will be closed all day.

Lobby of the post office building will be open from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m.

A special bus service operating from 2 p.m. onward on Monday between Vancouver Coach Lines depot and the Canadian Services College, Royal Roads, will serve members of the public attending the "Save the Children" pageant being sponsored at 3 p.m. by the Canadian Committee for World Refugee Year.

Light Ruling
Postponed

Decision by city council on the form of street lighting Victoria is to have downtown when overhead wiring is removed probably will wait the return from holiday, in about two months, of lighting superintendent Kenneth Reid. Mayor Percy Scourrah said yesterday.

Modern insecticides can be a menace as well as a blessing, the Victoria-Equumalt health department reminded residents yesterday.

"With such generalized use of insecticides people sometimes forget that many such materials are very dangerous and can cause injury if handled carelessly," the department said in a warning. "Not only is the person applying the insecticide at risk but also persons in the general area can be exposed to dangerous levels of poison."

Inhalation and absorption through the skin can result in poisoning, the department said, as well as eating or drinking insecticides.

It recommended:

- Ascertain the proper methods of handling the chemicals as recommended by the makers.
- Use of the lowest effective concentrations.
- Wearing of protective clothing which, like exposed skin, should be washed every time insecticide is used.
- Use of respirators when inhalation appears unavoidable.
- Locking up supplies.

Pre-Inaugural Run

Road Not Done
Ferry Diverted

The pre-inaugural run of the government-owned ferry Mv. Sidney will likely be made to the wharf at Sidney village rather than Swartz Bay, the regular tie-up place.

Sidney-North Saanich Chamber of Commerce president Gordon Hulme told chamber members last night they would have a tough time getting a welcoming committee over the still unfinished Swartz Bay road. The run is set for June 9 at 11 a.m.

Members of Victoria and Sidney-North Saanich chambers of commerce will be among those to welcome the ferry when it docks.

"Maybe Washington State Ferries will not let them use the wharf now," cracked one chamber member.

The provincial ferry service originally planned to use the federal government wharf at Sidney in conjunction with Washington State, but scrapped the idea in favor of building its own wharf at Swartz Bay.

Extreme
Pruning
'Butchery'

City parks administrator W. H. Warren doesn't think much of people who change the natural shapes of trees, he said yesterday — particularly flowering trees.

Re-shaping trees by severe pruning, Mr. Warren said, makes them unproductive of blooms and ugly, and is butchery, "a harsh word, but it's accurate."

Not only amateurs do it in Victoria, he added. "A lot of it is done by so-called professionals, some of them trained in the Old Country, who should know better. But for some reason they persist."

Mayor Seeks
Mall Action

Mayor Percy Scourrah hopes a definite decision will be made at the next city council meeting, he said yesterday on how and when to proceed with the downtown parking and mall bylaw.

The bylaw was scheduled to go to a vote of downtown property-owners May 5, but was postponed until May 19, and now has been postponed again because, the mayor said, of legal technicalities.

Jaycee Prize

Painting Your House
Could Win You $100

House painting may be a chore, but it could win some lucky Victoria resident $100 in cash.

Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce has amended its annual paint-up, clean-up campaign this year to offer $175 in prizes to residents who paint their houses.

Entry forms are available at paint stores and hardware stores. Winners will be announced May 28. Second prize is $50 and third is $25.

"This contest is being held in the hope that homeowners will paint their properties and so brighten up the city for the annual influx of tourists," Bryan Holliday, chairman of the contest committee, said last night.

In previous years Jaycees, helped by other city organizations and union members, have had one house painted.

Jackpots in Vancouver,
Sore Hands in Victoria

Call them names if you want, but it's no use slapping the parking meters in Victoria as they're slapping them in Vancouver.

Slap them in Victoria, a city official says, and all you'll get is a sore hand. But slap them in Vancouver, and you may get up to $4 in nickels and dimes.

Identical
To Real
Trooping

Three thousand seats at Wednesday's final run-through for the 1st Battalion, PPCLI, trooping the color ceremony will be available to the general public, an army spokesman announced yesterday.

Wednesday's ceremony at 2 p.m. at Work Point Barracks will be a dress rehearsal for the actual event May 27, but officials pointed out it will be identical in all respects except one.

ADMIRAL TO REVIEW

Brig J. W. Bishop, B.C. area commander, will take the salute at the dress rehearsal and on Friday the battalion will be reviewed by Rear Admiral H. S. Rayner, Flag Officer Pacific Coast.

Only 500 rush seats will be available to the public for Friday's ceremony, which also starts at 2 p.m.

FIRST TROOPING

The 90-minute ceremony will be the first trooping of the color since it was presented to the battalion by Queen Elizabeth in Beacon Hill Park last July. This year it commemorates the battle of Frezenberg, May 8, 1915.

The battalion, commanded by Lt-Col. J. C. Allan, will parade six guards, each consisting of three officers and 54 rank and file. Also taking part in the ceremony will be the battalion corps of drums and the military band of the Royal Canadian Engineers stationed at Chilliwack.

PARTY, BALL

Immediately following the May 27 ceremony, a garden party for all ranks and their guests will be held on the sports field. That evening a formal reception will be held in the officers' mess and the sergeants' mess will hold a ball. Other ranks will attend a dance the following night.

Farewell to Victoria

Farewells to Victoria were said yesterday by Governor-General George Vanier and Mme. Vanier at Inner Harbor. Here Gen. Vanier says goodbye to Premier Bennett at the dockside where HMCS Fraser waited to take the vice-regal party to Vancouver. Mme. Vanier is at left and Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross and Mrs. Ross, right, look on. Ship was due to reach mainland by 9 p.m. See Page 36.—(Colonist photo.)

Tourist Contest

Berry Time
Best Idea

A berry festival on the Saanich Peninsula, specially-stocked trout pools close to Victoria and an English-type pier built atop the Ogden Point breakwater were all good ideas when 13-year-old Gordon Osland, 2758 Telegraph Road, thought them up.

Judges for the Chamber of Commerce Tourist Appreciation Week junior high school essay contest awarded him the $35 top prize for his entry which included the ideas.

Gordon suggested the berry festival could be a Greater Victoria event through June and July with berries featured on restaurant menus, a "berry queen" contest and square dancing on the streets.

FEE CHARGED

He suggested some privately-owned lake near Victoria should be stocked with trout or bass, and a fee charged for fishing.

And he thought a pier over the top of the Ogden Point breakwater could include a dance hall, seafood restaurant and other concessions to make it self-supporting. Mount Newton Junior-Senior High School students took all the prizes in the junior section. Second was Ian Laddell, 13, a classmate of Gordon Osland, and third prize went to Rhys Phillips, 13, Grade 7.

OTHER WINNERS

David Bolster, 14, and Richard O'Neill, both Grade 8 students at Mount Newton, won honorable mentions for their entries.

The prize for the senior high school section of the contest was won by Sheila Engstrom, 18, a Grade 12 student at St. Ann's Academy. She suggested that Greater Victoria residents should do all they can, personally, to make visitors feel welcome to the area.

Prizes will be presented May 28. Tourist Appreciation Week runs from May 23 to 28.

MRA 'Danger'
Cited by Labor

Moral Re-Armament is trying hard to "infiltrate" organized labor in Greater Victoria and elsewhere, Victoria Labor Council delegates were told last night.

IWA delegate Jack MacKenzie said enough labor men are "falling for it to make this a very dangerous trend." He reminded delegates that MRA is an outgrowth of the Oxford Movement which was banned during the war.

"MRA has got more money than Carter's got pills," he said. "No one knows where they get it. They put on plays and show shows—but believe me, it's not for the welfare of the labor movement."

The labor council earlier heard a report that the labor-CCF liaison committee was making inquiries into granting of income tax exemptions for donations to MRA.

In other council business delegates endorsed a resolution from IWA Local 1-118 that the attorney-general's department make a thorough investigation of administration of Colquhoun mental home.

Local Teamster officials reiterated their stand that they are not prepared to compromise the right of union members to determine by vote who shall represent them, even if it means expulsion from even if it means expulsion from the Canadian Labor Congress May 28 for raiding.

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Please straighten out my wife. She'll listen to you but not to me.

I have a very capable secretary who does many extra favors for me. I try to show my gratitude by being especially considerate of her. Almost every weekend this secretary goes home for the weekend. She lives in a small town about 70 miles from here. Even though there are no office hours on Saturday I get dressed in the morning, pick her up at her apartment and drive her to the bus station. My wife objects to this. She says it doesn't look nice. Last week she offered to pay (out of her household money) the secretary's taxi fare to the bus station.

Please Unlock Door

Dear Ann Landers: When I read the letter from the woman who was mad at her paper boy because he always missed the porch and her paper got wet from the rain, it made me so mad I decided to write a letter myself. I've got three customers just like her on my route. They have screened-in porches and always lock the screen door. Where else can a kid leave the paper but on the steps where it gets wet?—DOING MY BEST

Dear Doing: Thank you. Note to all subscribers with screened-in porches: If you want dry papers, leave the screen door open.

Dear Ann: Please help me with a boy problem. I've been going with a fellow who used to live in town, but he moved 25 miles out several weeks ago. We are both 18, and high school seniors. It is understood that we save Friday evenings for each other. Well, every Friday since he moved, he's been driving in with his brother or sister in the car. They are both old enough to have dates of their own, but no—they just sit back there and gawk. It makes me very uncomfortable.

I like him a lot and hate to break off, but I don't know how much longer I can take his relatives. Why does he let them tag along? Shall I tell them off and take a chance on losing him?—FRIDAY DATE

Dear Date: They "tag along" at his invitation. This boy is on the shy side and doesn't want to be alone with you. Why not suggest double-date?

Brown and Brick Leading Colors

NEW YORK (UPI) — The sportswear fashion picture for fall is a double-billing.

Fashion expert Terry Mayer said in an interview that designers will unveil two new proportions and silhouette trends. They are:

—The relaxed, long and lean line with wrap sashed longer jackets, tunics, over-blouses, capes, slim skirts and sleek pants.

—The soft, bulky silhouette with full skirts of unpressed pleats, box pleats and voluminous knife pleats balanced by short jackets, cropped tops, vests and jerkins.

Miss Mayer boned up on the fall trends in connection with her duties as a merchandising consultant for stores across the nation.

SUDDEN FLIP

Where color's concerned, she said, there's a "sudden flip" to brights among the hazy, smoky old faithful hues.

Miss Mayer sees brown stepping up as the single most important color family. Lined up behind brown is "brick spiced with orange bits, stone green, school reds to wine reds, vibrant blues and purple."

She said the long-time silhouette rings in belted over-shirts reminiscent of African safari jackets. These are designed for wearing with slim skirts and pants.

"Other sporting blouses are collarless, long-sleeved affairs that take jewelry beautifully," Miss Mayer said.

LONG LINE

"Sweaters for fall also follow the long line. The longer the better. Some inch well down the hips, keeping pace with the tunic-style trend. Soft sashes slung low add to their appeal."

Other sweaters show the manish influence in the female fashion world, Miss Mayer said. These are bulky and soft, worked with giant-size yarns and big needles. They have a hand-knit appearance.

TO HIPLINE

The longer jackets, like the longer sweaters, reach to the hipline. Miss Mayer said many are softly belted with wrap sashes.

Variations on the jacket

theme include semi-shaped riding models that tend to resemble the short-cropped men's wear jacket.

"Chanel types and cropped waist-length versions balanced the bulky silhouette of full skirts and unpressed pleats," Miss Mayer said.

DALMATIAN

"The something new about fall coats is simulated fur trimming and deep pile linings. Some of the synthetics are used both inside and outside in casual and sports coats."

Miss Mayer said the deep pile linings are sheep-like or leopard-spotted or plaid.

"Watch for other newcomers—say Dalmatian, broadtail and other pile."

Thump Test Takes Nerve When Buying Pineapple

Pineapples, though prickly and forbidding to look at, are well worth a better acquaintance.

They are arriving in great numbers from Hawaii, and are very reasonably priced.

I have just been given a lesson in choosing and peeling a pineapple by an expert, and if you are interested, sit back and concentrate and I'll pass on the tips.

It is good marketing to choose a big one, as the core and rind of all are the same size, so the bigger the fruit the more there is to eat of it.

Color, smell and feel are the other things to note.

Pineapples ripen from the bottom upwards, and if it looks green around the base, it is definitely not ready for eating.

The unripe fruit has very little smell, so take a good sniff, and if it smells like a pineapple you are off to a good start.

Now really concentrate because I'm going to explain the "thump test."

Look at your own wrist and flick it with your finger about three inches down your arm. Hear the thump it makes?

Well, that is how a pineapple sounds when it is ready for eating.

If you have the nerve and are prepared to be thrown out of the store, try thumping the fruit.

Take courage, that is how it is done in the trade.

Another way to solve the mystery or what lies behind those prickles is to hold the fruit in the palm of your hand and press gently. It should "give" a bit.

Hunt inside the knob of leaves on the top and pull the small centre ones. If they come out easily the fruit is ready to eat.

Now, if you are still interested in "how to treat a pineapple" I can start on lesson number two, "how to peel it." First cut a thin slice off the bottom. Hold it upright by the leaves and strip the skin off thinly.

All the eyes will remain in the fruit.

Still using the leaves as a handle score the pineapple diagonally following the line of the eyes. Using the point of a knife, cut V shapes above and below to remove each eye.

Cut the top off and cut V about ¼ to ½ of an inch into the centre of the fruit. Take out each long slice and cut away the core along the coreline which is easy to see.

After that all you have to do is eat it.

Easy to do but trying to think about, isn't it?

May holiday weekend is always important in the fruit and salad world. Housewives will be pleased to hear that prices are not expected to soar for the occasion.

TIPS FOR PARENTS

By EDITH HENRY

The 5.20 bus stopped as usual, and as usual a tall, slim, middle-aged woman stepped down. She was greeted by a group of waiting children—evidently she was a working mother.

They set out along the road home and as they went, drifts of happy talk floated back.

STORM OF DAY

"D'you know what, Mummy?" was the childish introduction to the story of the day's events.

I was struck with the general attitude. There seemed to be no tale telling, no quarrelling reported, no requests for mother to discipline offenders—a really nice family.

DECISION NEEDED

In this generation, most girls have worked outside the home before marriage. For them there is going to be the necessity for deciding whether or not to go on.

Some wives, because they have enjoyed their career, will wish to continue. Others will do so in order to surmount the steep path that leads to an efficiently equipped home.

REASSESSMENT

The coming of children, however, should mean a reassessment of the decision.

On the one hand, some mothers do not take kindly to the bringing up of children. It may be that they expect the same exactitude of a former job to work here, too.

FILE AWAY

When they find, for example, that the small girl or boy refuses to be "fired away" at bedtime, they are frustrated. "Oh! to be back in the office again!"

The office efficiency, however, was gained through some years of preparation and experience. It may be that all the intelligent career girl needs is to develop her parental ability by further learning.

She will then experience the success she has been missing. How proud she can be to find that she has met a challenge and overcome her apparent inability.

SOME MUST

On the other hand, there are mothers who must continue to work outside the home on account of financial need.

Whatever the cause, ultimate success will depend upon the stress which is laid upon developing the family spirit which our little group showed on their way home.

WHAT'S COOKING

By LOUISE MOORE

While grandma counted little other than a "butcher" knife and a keen-edged paring tool among her kitchen equipment, the young bride of today can start "cutting up" with a choice of kitchen cutlery as long as her arm for greater ease and facility in preparing those three meals a day.

A kitchen to my way of thinking should be as well equipped as any office if work in the kitchen is to be accomplished speedily and efficiently.

BRIDE'S CHOICE

This list of kitchen cutlery may help the bride's choice or give an idea of what to buy for a kitchen shower that would really be useful. A set would make a very practical wedding gift which is what most young brides appreciate these days.

When buying cutlery it is advisable to buy the best as it will prove the least expensive in the long run.

SHARPENING STEEL

First is the magnetic sharpening steel to keep each knife keen as a razor—the way every kitchen knife should be if it is to do a good job.

Second is the roast fork which comes in mighty handy when meat is in the oven.

The third is a ham slicer and a wonderfully efficient job it does in preventing those ham bits flying hither and yon.

BREAD KNIFE

Next is the bread knife and for slicing bread for sandwiches it's a winner: and if you like to see meat sliced neatly from a roast the roast slicer does a perfect job: the steak and fowl slicer is a pretty handy piece of cutlery that dad will appreciate when doing a carving job—give him one for Father's Day and let him start cutting up.

The Swedish cook's knife as well as the two French cook's knives—well, no chef would be wit out them.

UTILITY KNIVES

For speed in cutting up grapefruit, the next knife is indispensable. Then along come two keen-edged utility knives. Last, but not least is the knife that does the most prosaic jobs of all—paring vegetables and fruits.

And there you have tools that make so many kitchen chores so much easier—if you keep them sharp—and you know how tough meat can be these days.

'Margaret Looked Radiantly Happy'

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad (AP)—Honeymooning Princess Margaret and Antony Armstrong-Jones planned to visit the undersea gardens at Buccoo Reef today.

Anchoring off Tobago Island Monday night, the couple went swimming Tuesday at Golden Grove Bay and spent the day at the cottage of Frank Latour, owner of a Tobago estate. A guard of police and security officers ensured the honeymooners' privacy. They returned to the yacht Tuesday night.

The couple planned to spend today and Thursday around Tobago and then visit Port of Spain, capital of the West Indies federation, for several days.

Governor Sir Edward Beetham declared Tobago and its territorial waters a prohibited area for the duration of the couple's stay. All roads were blocked off to keep sightseers away. But an American woman tourist got a good glimpse of the princess. She said she was swimming close to a reef about 11 a.m. when she saw the princess and two other persons step off a launch. "I recognized Margaret, who was wearing a full skirt of second day off the royal yacht Britannia since leaving England after their wedding May 16."

Fallout Probe About to Start

VANCOUVER (CP) — First meeting of Canada's national committee for the control of radiation hazards is scheduled tentatively for June 13 and 14 at Montreal, it was announced yesterday.

Dr. H. L. Keenleyside, provisional chairman, said the 44-man group of distinguished Canadians will be joined by representatives from other groups "to work out something permanent."

B.C. representatives were expected to be Dr. N. A. M. MacKenzie, president of the University of B.C.; Dr. John Mieray, dean of medicine at UBC; Dr. Brock Chisholm, former head of the World Health Organization; Walter Koerner, businessman, and A. E. Grauer, president of the B.C. Electric.

'Foolish to Ignore Effect of Radiation'

VANCOUVER (CP) — There is too much ignorance about the effect of radiation on man, Dr. James Foulks of the University of B.C. faculty of medicine said last night.

It is foolish to ignore the evidence, said Dr. Foulks. Low doses of radiation can cause hereditary damage to all kinds of living organisms and the effects on man can be inferred.

Addressing Vancouver Labor Council, he said it is suspected that low doses of radiation can cause leukemia in man, and there is no question that an adequate dose can cause leukemia and possibly other types of cancer.

The problems of radiation cannot be separated from the problems of securing peace. The alternative to agreement said Dr. Foulks, because a nuclear war represents the ultimate in nuclear hazards, plate, he added.

Unconcealed Dismay

Parisians Boo Khrushchev Western World Echoes

By K. C. THALER

PARIS (UPI) — Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev was booed on the streets of Paris yesterday, and it was a sound that was echoing and swelling around the Western world.

There was unhidden dismay in many parts of the free world over the collapse of the summit, and frank criticism in some that the United States had blundered in the U-2 plane incident.

STRIDENT AFFRONTS

But the strident and personal affronts from a pious Khrushchev to President Eisenhower were bringing a closing of ranks and a resignation to the return of an even colder cold war.

Newspaper reaction through western Europe almost unanimously blamed Khrushchev for the conference failure.

In London, Australian Prime Minister Robert Menzies told a British parliamentary luncheon:

"It is useless for somebody to tell me that Mr. Khrushchev has scored a great propaganda success. I have a firm belief that most of the people in the world—ordinary, sensible, honest, honorable people—will regard this manoeuvre with contempt."

'No. 1 ENEMY'

Communist China finally broke its silence.

"U.S. imperialism is No. 1 enemy of the world peace and Eisenhower is No. 1 war-monger," said Kuo Mo-jo, chairman of the China Peace Committee. "Comrade Khrushchev's stand was both reasonable and just."

In New Delhi, The Times of India strongly criticized the United States for attempting to justify the reconnaissance flights, and Eisenhower for not immediately announcing their suspension.

But the Indian Express noted that Khrushchev "has imported tone, temper and choice of words into the summit conversation which must do more harm than the spy incident."

In Warsaw, a smartly-dressed and sad-faced Polish girl told a guest at a Western reception: "The cold war is back."

THWARTED

In London, Home Secretary R. A. Butler told an American Chamber of Commerce luncheon that the three Western leaders "have striven day and night in the face of the most terrible possibilities to achieve a constructive result, and they have been thwarted by one

Teacup Diplomacy Urged To Fix Summit Damage

VANCOUVER (CP)—A return to teacup diplomacy to repair damage done by the breakup of the summit conference was forecast Wednesday by Professor F. H. Soward of University of British Columbia. The internationally-known historian, who once served with the external affairs department, said the best place for such diplomacy would be at the United Nations.

Visits Paris Churches

Crowds Urge Ike To Stand Firm

PARIS (UPI) — President Eisenhower paid solemn visits Wednesday to two of Christendom's most beautiful ancient churches—Notre Dame Cathedral and the Sainte Chapelle.

Large crowds quickly gathered around him and one Frenchwoman implored him to "stand firm above all."

The U.S. president spent one hour and 20 minutes on an impromptu tour of the two churches before going to lunch at the Elysee Palace with President Charles de Gaulle.

Eisenhower originally had planned to travel by helicopter to Chartres, 50 miles west of Paris, to visit the famed cathedral there.

But flying conditions were unfavorable and he decided, instead, to visit the two churches in Paris.

Eisenhower's visit to the 12th-century Notre Dame Cathedral was his first in more than 30 years. It was his first visit to Sainte Chapelle, the 13th-century chapel of King Louis IX.

The president's trip to the two churches was unannounced. But word of his presence spread quickly along the banks of the Seine and large crowds pressed around the church entrances.

One sad-faced woman pressed close to the president and told him in an emotional voice: "Be firm—stand firm above all."

Democrats' Cable Too Late for Ike

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Democratic party leaders disclosed Wednesday they had urged President Eisenhower in a cablegram to ask Nikita Khrushchev to reconsider his decision to postpone any summit conference until after the U.S. presidential elections.

The cablegram, signed by the party's Congressional leaders and Adlai Stevenson, stressed that all Americans, regardless of party, want peace. The summit conference apparently died before the message could be relayed to Khrushchev.

But Senate Democratic leader Lyndon Johnson followed up the show of bipartisan unity with a Senate speech in which he said the American people were not going to be panicked, divided or blackmailed by the Soviet premier.

Johnson said there would be "cool and objective assessment of whatever mistakes have been made" by the administration, but the study will take place under conditions that will "contribute to the information" of the people and strengthen the country.

Senate Republican leader Everett Dirksen congratulated Johnson, saying the speech offered a refreshing note after the Paris "fantasy."

The cablegram to Eisenhower was both an expression of national unity in the summit crisis and an apparent attempt to smash any idea that Khrushchev might get a better deal from a Democratic administration than he would from Eisenhower.

Khrushchev Has Favorite

PARIS (AP) — Soviet Premier Khrushchev said yesterday he has a preference in the U.S. presidential election campaign but "I don't want to tell Americans who to elect."

Nikita Storms, Rants, Raves As 2,000 Heckle, Boo, Jeer

Ike, Germans Target Of Red Chief's Tirade

PARIS (UPI) — At one point yesterday, Nikita Khrushchev felt compelled to remind the audience of 2,000 gathered before him in the Palais de Chaillot that he was chief of the mighty Soviet government. A chorus of boos almost drowned out his words.

This was a furious Khrushchev, stung by the heckling and booing from some of the correspondents, cameramen and sightseers jammed into the hot hall. U.S. correspondents, accustomed to the cool, composed appearance of the president of the United States, stared in amazement. But the same token, President Eisenhower never is booed and jeered at his press conferences. The chairman of the Council of Ministers of the U.S.S.R. with rage.

Heckler's 'Crazy'

Once, he sat down and rubbed his hands as though washing them. He singled out some people booing and made a winding motion with his hand at his head to indicate they were "crazy." Some people stood on seats in the crowded hall to shake their fists at him. One of the loudest hecklers was Dr. Bela Faban, a Hungarian refugee leader from New York. The people booed Khrushchev in the streets of Paris as he drove through the city yesterday but he appeared confident and smiling when he strode to the rostrum of the Palais de Chaillot press conference room. Throughout he was flanked by Defence Minister Marshal Rodion Malinovsky and Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko. Gromyko sat stony-faced. Malinovsky smiled when Khrushchev smiled and frowned when Khrushchev frowned.

Chorus of Boos

Khrushchev's opening remarks blaming the United States for torpedoing the summit talks brought a chorus of boos. He appeared at first not to notice. Later the jeers became insistent and he grew angry. The booing became louder when he launched into a savage attack on West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer. There was boom and pandemonium and Khrushchev hardly could be heard. He singled out one man and said to him: "I have been informed that Adenauer sent here some of his bastards who were not beaten in Stalingrad. If you were not beaten in Stalingrad we will give you such a 'boo' that you will not dare come into this hall and boo again. I represent the great Soviet people. You, this little group, represent groups of the German people which themselves will be ashamed of you. This booing heartens me."

'Pleasant to Hear'

"It is pleasant to hear how the flunkies of imperialism are raging. I like coming to grips with the enemies of the working class..." He shook his fist angrily and Communist reporters applauded. They were drowned out by jeers and it appeared fist fights would erupt any minute. He called the Germans "plunderers" and "wise guys" who had escaped a beating. "You must understand who is standing before you." Journalists who have covered news conferences in just about every possible language and setting were stunned. It was a reporter's nightmare—but one no reporter would have missed. From time to time Khrushchev appeared rattled at the heckling but he continued his tirade against the United States and Eisenhower. UPI White House reporter Merriman Smith said it was "like the scene at an American football game when a fist-fight breaks out."

Anger to Sarcasm

Khrushchev's mood changed constantly. From outright anger he would turn to wry sarcasm. He'd smile at some remarks. He would be bored during a translation. Then seconds later he would be pounding a table and shouting almost incoherently. Toward the last the lights flickered and went out through a power failure and an American reporter exclaimed: "My God! Now he's blown a gasket." When he resumed his tirade against Eisenhower some reporters shouted: "This is a press conference! We want questions!" Once Khrushchev became so annoyed he pounded the microphone in a slashing motion with the side of his hand, deafening listening reporters with ear phones. A moment later he mimicked Eisenhower in voice and gesture. This was when he told of the Camp David, Md., meeting and said Eisenhower wanted him to call him "my friend."

'Too Friendly' in Past Did Kremlin Leash Mr. K?

PARIS (UPI) — Top American authorities said last night that the solidarity of the Western alliance has been strengthened by the brutality of Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's attack on President Eisenhower and the United States. The Soviet premier's bitter tirades, boos in the Monday session of the Big Four and his news conference yesterday also will cost him heavily in neutralist and other countries, these sources predicted. The top-deck American assessment of Khrushchev's actions here in sabotaging the conference was that there has been a shift in tactics ordered by the Communist central committee. It was believed that while Khrushchev had been following committee policy, satisfactorily, he had been guilty of "ideological disorientation" by getting on over-friendly terms with Western leaders during his frequent visits abroad. President Eisenhower is expected to touch on some of these factors in an address to make over radio-TV some time next week. American officials who studied carefully the text of Khrushchev's 2 1/2-hour news conference this afternoon pointed out that he carefully refrained, despite the bitterness of his remarks, in committing himself to any specific new action. They cited the fact that he refused under questioning to say when he might carry out his frequently-repeated threat to sign a separate peace treaty with Communist East Germany.

Angry Khrushchev Answers Jeers with Fist

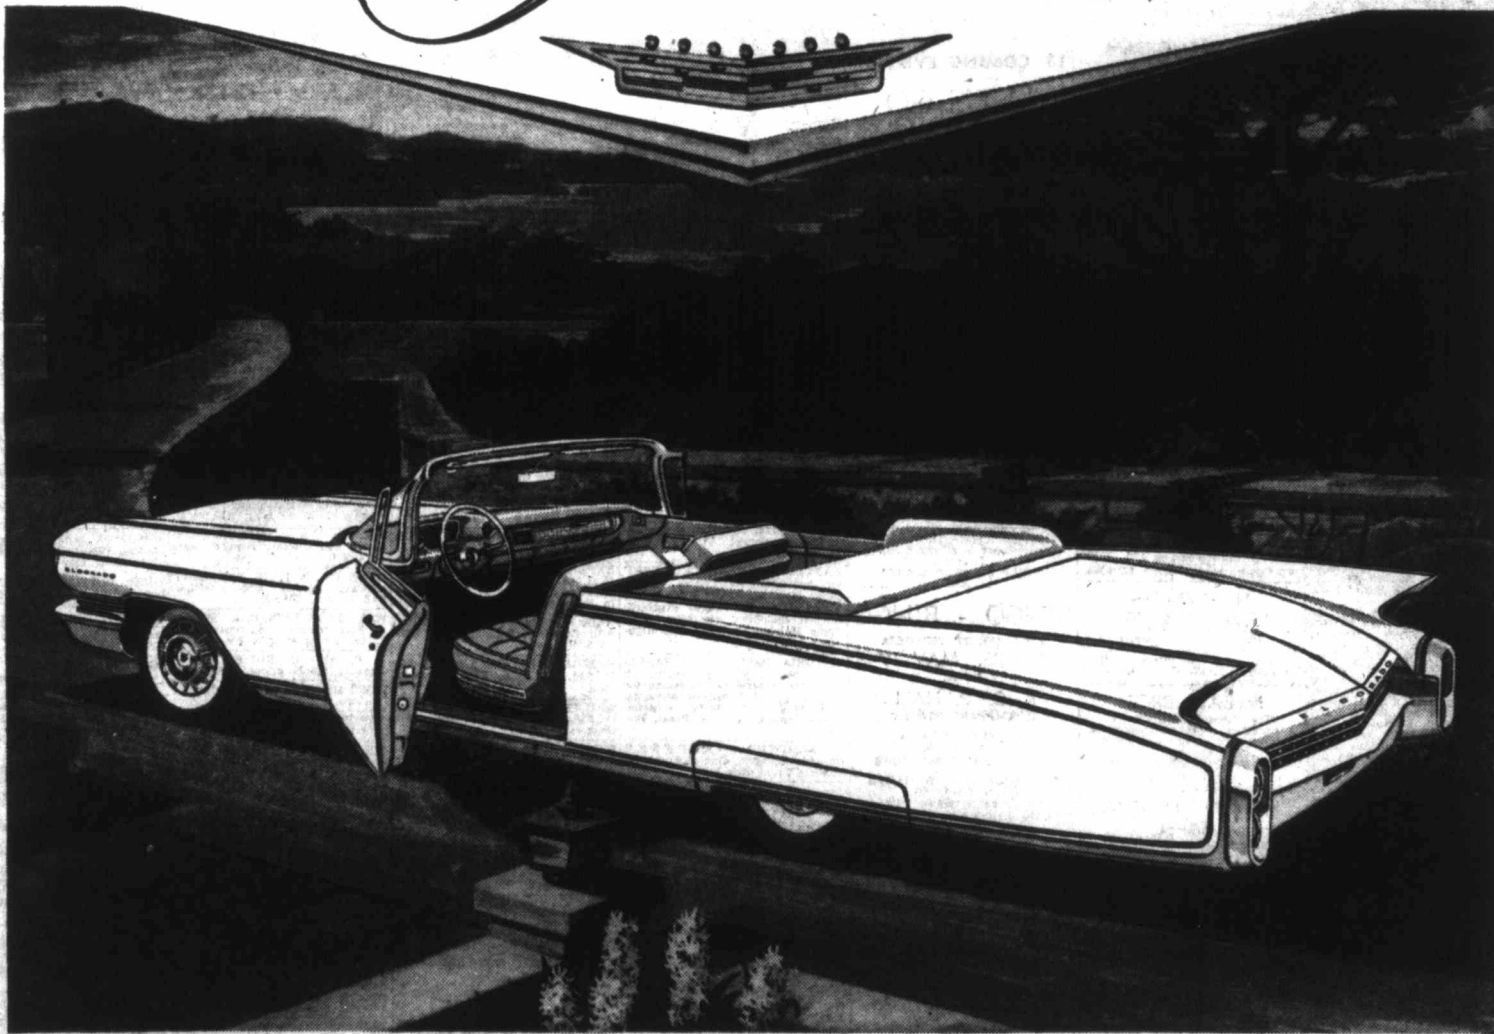

Fistful of anger is shaken by Nikita Khrushchev against waves of jeers and heckling in Paris press conference. His mood changed constantly during the unprecedented speech, from outright anger to smiling sarcasm.—(AP Photofax.)

Eva Gabor Advises:

Pale, Delicate Wife Will Hold Husband

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Actress Eva Gabor's advice to wives who want to hold their husbands is, "don't get sunburned."

"I am definitely against a sunburn," she said. "It looks unbecoming."

"A wife should always look white, delicate and feminine. Then she can get away with any mischief. Her husband won't mind."

Miss Gabor, now wed to broker Richard Brown, is a member of a Hungarian family renowned for two generations for its man-taming skill. She feels, with some justification, that she herself is an "international authority" on how to attract men.

"But just because a man puts a ring on your finger doesn't mean you've got him forever," she said. "That's only the beginning. That's when the trouble starts."

"You can never really relax in a marriage. Too often when people marry the wife stops growing—and the man begins to grow. Unless the wife does something, she is bound to lose her husband."

We asked Miss Gabor if she would disclose a few European secrets in the art of winning and holding a husband. She gladly obliged.

"The main thing a woman must always remember is to look feminine."

"She should always wear a hat and never take off her gloves, even when she smokes."

"European girls know how to flirt and in this a hat is a big help. A hat with a wide brim is a big help to a girl with pretty eyes."

"But if she wears a flowered hat she should never wear a busy-looking dress. It puts her out of focus."

Here are a few more of her suggestions:

1. Never wear low-heeled shoes. It's better for a girl to go barefooted.

2. Eat in a dimly-lit restaurant. Then, if a girl has a shiny nose, the glare from it won't blind her escort.

3. In wearing a hat, be sure all the hair is tucked in. Then no one can mistake a girl for a mop.

4. Wear dangling rather than button earrings. They're sexier.

5. Don't let yourself get too thin.

"It's not just because I myself am round and European," said Miss Gabor in elaborating this last point. "But I do not think men like women who are so thin they look like boys."

"A woman should have curves."

Eva believes that, by and large, North American women dress very well, but that their biggest error is in dressing to please each other.

"What is the good of it if another woman thinks you look chic, and your husband thinks you look terrible?"

But the biggest lesson most women need to learn in the field of romance, she added, is how to make their men feel more manly.

"European women know better how to make the man feel he is the boss. This a man needs."

"If his wife tells him 'you are the greatest,' her husband has the resources to fight again tomorrow. I cannot stand women who are bossy to men. It makes me shrivel to hear them."

"A wife can get anything from her husband if she only learns how to make him feel he is the boss."

It will be a dangerous mission. There are plenty of updrafts of warm air around Everest, and winds hit the sides of the mountains at 100 miles an hour, then deflect upwards to great heights.

"Under Everest conditions," said Henry Pittroche, who will be a member of Mrs. Burns' expedition, "a glider will climb faster than an airplane."

"If the pilot can't get back, she'll have to bail out and that would be a dangerous business on Everest. It would be the end of the glider and maybe the pilot."

HUSBAND AIDS

Assisting Mrs. Burns will be her husband, Dennis, Dr. Brenning James and Pittroche, all gliding enthusiasts.

Mrs. Burns, a scientific officer with the Royal Aircraft Establishment, holds nearly all of Britain's women's gliding records.

NEED PERMISSION

Pittroche will ship out his own plane for towing Mrs. Burns' glider aloft.

He said that hauling the gasoline up to Pokhara will eventually run the price to nearly $3 a gallon.

"We expect to get permission from the Nepal government next May," Mrs. Burns said.

"The craft used for the glide over Everest will have to have a pressurized cabin. As no glider is made with one, we'll have to build it."

OWN MONEY

She said the members of the expedition hope to finance the expedition on their own money—and from anyone who wants to help back the flight.

The total cost was estimated at between $14,000 and $28,000.

CBC May Face Charges Over Program Tonight

OTTAWA (CP)—The government was urged Wednesday in the Senate to consider charges if the CBC carries a television interview on Closeup tonight with a woman who is said to earn $100 a night acting as co-respondent in divorce cases.

Senator Muriel McQueen Fergusson (L. New Brunswick) said the proposed subject matter of the program is most inappropriate for broadcasting into the homes of thousands of Canadians.

Injured Climber Rescued

MOUNT MCKINLEY, Alaska (UPI)—A U.S. air force helicopter reached a stranded party of injured climbers on the side of Mount McKinley yesterday afternoon and took John Day, 51, off the mountain.

Fragmentary radio reports indicated that Day, was being taken to the summit camp, about 30 miles from the top of McKinley.

It was not immediately determined when the other three injured climbers would be removed. Day, a retired Oregon wheat rancher, was suffering from shock, a fractured leg and other injuries.

His fall was witnessed by five climbers from an Anchorage, Alaska, party who rushed to the aid of the injured men.

B.C.'s Trade Sole 'Drum'

If Premier W. A. C. Bennett beats any drum while visiting Britain next week for British investment in this province, it will be for this province's "key position" in trade, not for any one particular project, or the government.

The premier was emphatic on this point during a press conference yesterday, when he pointed out B.C.'s position facing the Pacific and between Alaska and the rest of the United States.

TREMENDOUS

"There are possibilities here for tremendous trade," he said, adding that the province offered opportunities for investment that were "bound to be tremendously fruitful."

"The suggestion that I will seek investment for just one project is just ridiculous," Mr. Bennett said.

MONTREAL FIRST

Flying to Montreal first, Mr. Bennett said he will have financial talks Monday with men who are giving up their holiday for that purpose to fly on to England. He will return to New York and more financial talks on June 17.

Mr. Bennett denied that B.C. would make any "special deals" to develop the province's natural resources.

Any such development he said, would be made under existing legislation.

'FAIR TO ALL'

"Fair treatment to all and special privileges to none has been our slogan from the start," said the premier. "We have lived up to it."

Touching on provincial-federal financing arrangements conference yesterday, when for the Columbia River project, Mr. Bennett said he had sent an invitation to federal Finance Minister Donald Fleming, then in Vancouver. He came to Victoria last week-end when government officials and technical experts were here to discuss the project.

NO REPLY

"I didn't even receive a reply to my telegram," he said. He added that External Affairs Minister Green had said "they would pay 50 per cent of the costs, but they have been running away ever since."

"I have asked twice and I can't get any answers," he said.

Radio-TV Control Planned After A-Attack on Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — Plans to set up the nucleus of an emergency organization to control and administer the national communications system after any nuclear attack were announced Wednesday by virtue of the Radio Act, by Transport Minister Hees, the Telegraph Act, the Rail- way Act and the Canada Shipping Act, extensive authority over telecommunications in Canada is already vested. He told the Commons: "It is necessary to develop an emergency organization which would exist in nucleus form in peace time as a planning agency, and in emergency would function as the executive agency of government in controlling and administering the national communications systems, including radio and television."

"The organization is to be known as the Emergency National Telecommunications Organization (ENTO). It will be developed within the department of transport and be under the control of the minister of transport, in whom, were announced Wednesday by virtue of the Radio Act, the Telegraph Act, the Rail- way Act and the Canada Shipping Act, extensive authority over telecommunications in Canada is already vested.

"In the discharge of its re- sponsibilities, ENTO will be advised by a committee of senior representatives of other government departments hav- ing a major interest in tele- communications. Advice from commercial telecommunica- tion agencies will also be sought."

The earliest fortifications of Fort Amherst, south of the harbor entrance at St. John's, Nfld. were started about 1704.

DRINK B.C. MILK EVERY DAY

Milk is our most nearly perfect food. Protein of high quality, calcium and riboflavin (vitamin B2) are all supplied by our fresh B.C. milk. Milk packs a wealth of nourishment into every glass... there's no waste... and the cost is low in proportion to food value. Serve B.C. milk to your family every day.

AN IMPORTANT B.C. INDUSTRY

The dairy farmers of British Columbia are independent business men striving to give you the finest dairy products at the lowest possible prices. Dairying contributes over $36,000,000 a year to our economy but the importance of the dairy farmers cannot be measured in dollars alone. Dairying is a most essential industry and our B.C. dairy products are among the best in the world.

NEW IDEAS FOR MILK AND MILK PRODUCTS

We never outgrow our need for the calcium, protein and phosphorus that milk provides in our diet. Everyone needs milk every day — adolescents, at least 1½ pints, younger children, at least a pint and adults, at least ½ a pint. Nowadays, with a complete array of milk products in all large food stores, dairy foods help a lot to make eating and cooking more fun.

Apricot Milk Shake

Mix equal parts of chilled milk and apricot nectar or apple-cot in a pitcher or thermos. Leave a couple of inches of space. Fill with small chunks of ice-cream. Cover and leave in refrigerator or cork thermos. In about an hour you'll have a delicious milk shake ready to serve.

Apple Tart

Place apple eighths in unbaked pie shell. Lap the apple pieces so that apples cover crust to a depth of about ½ an inch. Sprinkle with sugar (and spice, if desired). Bake in hot oven until crust browns. Turn down heat to 350° and continue baking until apples are tender. Swirl sour cream over hot apples and place pie under broiler for 5 minutes.

Note: Sour cream makes a delicious glazed topping on many foods. Try it on fish, chicken, fruit pies, vegetables. Just cook until food is ready to eat but not overcooked. Coat with sour cream and broil.

Cooking with evaporated milk

When recipes call for milk, you can use half the amount of B.C. evaporated milk plus the same amount of water. For coffee, fruit, or cereals, use evaporated milk as it comes from the can. B.C. evaporated milk comes in two convenient sizes. One of them will be just right for your family.

B.C. GOVERNMENT

HON. NEWTON P. STEACY, MINISTER OF AGRICULTURE

Surprise for 'Amps' Ends Vaniers' Visit

Governor-General George Vanier yesterday ended his first official visit to Victoria with a quiet day which included a surprise visit to a group of war amputees.

The governor-general and Madame Vanier later drove from Government House through busy streets to the Inner Harbor where they boarded HMCS Fraser for the return trip to Vancouver.

$1 Tax Claim 'Must Be Misquote'

Victoria municipal leaders gave Herbert Bruch the benefit of the doubt yesterday and thought the Esquimalt Social Credit MLA must have been misquoted in Neudorf, Sask.

The Canadian Press reported from Neudorf Mr. Bruch had said that, because of the provincial home-owners' grant, most home-owners in B.C. paid only $1 in municipal taxes.

"If that statement is correct as reported it's just plain silly," said Mayor Percy Scurrell.

Reeve George Chatterton of Saanich added: "It's so far from reality, so far from the truth, that he must have been misquoted."

OTTAWA (UP) — Works Minister Walker said Wednesday 29,101 houses were completed in Canada during the first four months of the year compared to 27,434 during the same period last year, but housing starts were down from 22,764 to 13,942.

About 100 spectators waiting on the Black Ball Ferry dock applauded as the governor-general stepped out of the car into warm spring sunshine. Other hundreds lined the causeway overlooking the harbor to watch the warship sail at 3:30 p.m.

There was an air of relaxed informality about the entire proceedings. The governor-general and Mrs. Vanier spent several minutes chatting with Premier Bennett and his wife and Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross and Mrs. Ross before saying their farewells. Among those present were Rear-Admiral H. S. Rayner and his wife.

POLICE PRESENTED

An aide was sent to fetch two city police officers who acted as motorcycle outriders for the vice-regal party during their stay. Const. Ted Hamer and Const. Al Harwood were presented to the governor-general.

Applauding spectators clustered around the gangway as the vice-regal party boarded the vessel. First World War veterans in the crowd shouted "good old Van Doos" and "up the 6th Brigade." Mme. Vanier exchanged animated greetings with several who spoke French.

WITH AIDE

Earlier, the governor-general drove with one of his aides to the headquarters of the Victoria branch of War Amputations of Canada, ar-

iving at 11 a.m. and spending half an hour with 25 members assembled there.

During the morning Mme. Vanier, accompanied by Lieutenant-Governor Ross, went for a drive to the Malahat. She said afterwards she was thrilled by the scenery.

Members of the vice-regal party were guests of the lieutenant-governor and Mrs. Ross during their two-night stay at Government House.

U.S. Dismisses Drug Official

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Arthur Flemming, secretary of health, education and welfare, Wednesday ousted Dr. Henry Welch from a top position in the Food and Drug Administration on grounds he "deliberately misled his superiors" about his outside publishing income.

Flemming demanded Welch's "immediate resignation within hours after the Senate drug investigating subcommittee produced evidence that Welch earned $27,142 over a 10-year period from his interest in non-government medical publications.

Flemming conceded that last October he gave a clean bill of health to Welch, 58, the $17,500-a-year director of the agency's division of antibiotics.

He said he acted then on the basis of Welch's assurances on the extent of his financial interests in medical trade journals and a publishing firm which turns out an antibiotics manual.

"It is also clear that we should have thoroughly investigated his statements to us," he said. "I regret that we did not."

If the resignation is not forthcoming, Flemming said, "charges will be preferred," including alleged violations of the Civil Service Act.

'Without Working Wives Economy Would Collapse'

KAMLOOPS (CP) — An unemployment insurance official said Wednesday the economy of Canada would collapse without working married women.

Mrs. Eleanor Morley, regional co-ordinator of women's employment for the Pacific region, said 27 per cent of Canada's labor force are women and 40 per cent of these are married.

Recovery Unlikely

Soviet Spaceship Due Down Soon

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union said Wednesday night it would bring its dummy spaceship down "shortly," but did not pinpoint the time more precisely.

Tass News Agency said everything aboard the orbiting space ship was "working normally" as the satellite made its 59th orbit of the earth.

"The program of scientific measurements ... is now nearing its completion," Tass said. "The command will be given from earth shortly to start the ship-satellite's descent from its orbit."

The Soviets have said previously there will be no attempt to recover the satellite, which presumably will burn up when it hits the earth's atmosphere.

However, rocket expert Ari Sternfeld said the spaceship "is intended for the study of

New Milestone For Pioneer V

WASHINGTON (UPI) — America's interplanetary spacecraft passed the 10,000,000-mile mark Wednesday in its flight from the earth.

Trackers calculated Pioneer V's position as of 10:51 a.m. PDT at 10,000,000 miles from the earth and said it was pulling farther away at a speed of 9,541 miles an hour.

He noted that the Soviet satellite is moving on an orbit which "is almost a perfect circle" at just about the right height for a man-in-space experiment.

There's nothing in the world quite as tangy and tasty as lemon pie made with fresh Sunkist Lemons. Two hints. Don't squeeze the lemon juice until the instant you need it ... and remember to add a little grated lemon rind. That's the secret of that deliciously tart-sweet flavour. Pearkes Hints Grounded RCAF

Services Still On Alert

OTTAWA (UPI) — The 1950 order-in-council that put Canada's regular armed forces on active duty for the Korean war is still in effect, Defence Minister Pearkes said Wednesday.

The government considers it advisable to keep it so because of the duty of many Canadian armed servicemen in various parts of the world, the minister told the Commons.

South Africa's exports of uranium were valued at £53,000,000 in 1958.

U.S. General's Guess

Russians Planning Crew of Spacemen?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An air force general said yesterday he believes the latest Soviet satellite brought the Russians to the point where they are ready to put more than one man into orbit around earth.

The opinion was expressed at a news conference by Brig. Gen. Don Flickinger, bioastronautics expert of the air force research and development command.

Flickinger suggested that the Russian "spaceship," put in orbit May 15, is a complex vehicle for protecting human beings from the heat hazards of re-entry into the atmosphere and from emergency perils which might result from faulty rocket performance.

In Chicago, Maj. Gen. John B. Medaris went even further — offering the guess that a man is aboard the Soviet satellite. The retired army missile chief said he also had a "good hunch" that Russia would try to recover the vehicle. (See Page 1.)

"It doesn't make sense that they won't try to recover it," Medaris said. "I'm not one

Mr. Pearkes said there should be agreement on the types of defence provided by each partner. It was "quite reasonable" that one partner contribute "all of one and none of another."

The implication of this is that Canada will provide the radar stations and the U.S. the Bomarc anti-aircraft missile squadrons in readiness.

Canada and the U.S. last year agreed to construction of seven new heavy radars and Mr. Pearkes said the RCAF will man all seven.

PLANES NEEDED

Replying to a series of questions by Paul Hellyer (L. Toronto Trinity) in the Commons defence committee, Mr. Pearkes said there will be a requirement for manned interceptors as long as a bomber threat against North America exists.

But Canada was in an air defence partnership with the U.S. It was not essential that both partners provide all parts of the air defence system — warning, manned interceptors and anti-aircraft missiles.

Promoted

Dr. William Petrie, formerly of Victoria, has been named assistant chief scientist (physical sciences) at defence research board headquarters.

At Festival Here

B.C. Indians Only Dancers

Only British Columbia Indian dances will be seen at the annual Indian Festival, to be held on the Songhees Reserve, May 22 and 23, Chief John Albany said last night.

Chief Albany said plans to bring a troupe of Montana dancers to the festival were cancelled as it was felt tourists would prefer to see dances of this province.

Dancers and troupes to take part in the festival include Chief Mungo Martin and his troupe, Chief Hummingbird of West Saanich Reserve and Chief Andy Frank of Comox and his troupe.

Some 15 entries have already been received for the war canoe races and at least another five are expected.

VANCOUVER — Magistrate Lorne Jackson reserved decision on committal of Frederick Hurren, 24, charged with murder in the death of his seven-month-old daughter, Carol Ann.

It May Be Unorganized But Organized About It

Not One in 100 Natives Knows What Freedom Is

VANCOUVER (CP) — John Mansfield, a government builder from Northern Rhodesia, said here Wednesday that fewer than one per cent of the natives in Africa know what freedom means.

"After 70 years contact with the whites they have only a veneer of civilization despite the progress made in education," he said.

Mr. Mansfield, who has been in Rhodesia eight years, is on vacation and visiting relatives here.

He said in an interview natives are like eight- or nine-year-old children and like such children eventually get sick of control.

He said Northern Rhodesia won't have native rule for some time.

The British, with heavy copper investments in the country, have done much for the natives and in turn intend to hold control, he said.

Injuries Minor In Two Wrecks

Only one man was injured, and not seriously, in a crash that caused extensive damage to two cars on the Patricia Bay Highway at Mt. Newton Cross Road yesterday.

Central Saanich police said only the drivers were in the two cars — Patrick William Thomas Carson, 1024 Bewdley, and William Evans Newton, 210 Dennison. The crash occurred about 2 p.m.

Carson was taken by police ambulance to St. Joseph's Hospital for treatment of head injuries, and then discharged.

In North Saanich late Tuesday, two men escaped serious injury when the car in which they were riding went more than 300 feet out of control, rolling as it went over part of the distance.

Driver David Joseph Acton, 65, Moss, and passenger Donald Wilkinson, 1119 Chapman, walked away from the wreckage of the car, damaged to the extent of about $600.

The accident occurred on the West Saanich Road near Ardmore.

Transfusion Killer?

LONDON, Ont. (UPI) — A Jehovah's Witness couple said Wednesday that a blood transfusion forced on the wife in 1953 caused a blood condition that resulted in the death of her seventh child.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Wolfe were giving evidence at the inquest into the death of their daughter last April after a blood transfusion failed to save her life. She had been made a ward of the Children's Aid Society through court action on the day of her birth after her parents refused a transfusion.

Mrs. Wolfe said that after she had her fifth child in 1953 she developed an illness and was given a transfusion against her will. Wolfe said the family doctor told him this transfusion caused a blood condition.

Mrs. Wolfe told the jury her sixth child died as a result, and she knew her seventh would die.

Asked for his reasons for objecting to transfusions, Wolfe quoted from the Bible he carried with him a reference "that ye abstain . . . from blood."

Job Promises

Springhill Wives 'Sick and Tired'

SPRINGHILL, N.S. (CP)—Wives of unemployed coal miners expressed renewed anger Wednesday at what they termed the failure of the federal and provincial governments to provide work for their men. The women held another in a series of protest meetings to discuss the town's bleak employment situation.

"We're tired and sick of receiving false promises," a spokesman for the group said. Springhill has been without a major industry since a coal mine was closed following a 1958 mine disaster.

The women contended that "outside help" was being used in the construction of a minimum security prison farm being built here. The project was designed to provide employment for Springhill area men.

First Stage $100,000,000

Work to Start Next Year

B.C. to Get $450,000,000 Natural Gas System

McMahon Outlines Project

First stage of a new $450,000,000 natural gas transmission system for B.C. was disclosed in a joint announcement here yesterday by Premier Bennett and petroleum magnate Frank M. McMahon.

Immediate plans call for expenditure of $100,000,000 during 1961 on construction of a 250-mile feeder pipeline in northern B.C.

DOUBLE CAPACITY

Second stage, three to four years away, will involve a $100,000,000 expansion of the feeder system and a $250,000,000 project designed to double the carrying capacity of the 650-mile Westcoast Transmission Co. trunk line between Taylor and Sumas.

The entire project, Mr. McMahon told reporters in the premier's office late yesterday, is designed to make possible the transmission of 1,000,000,000 cubic feet of gas a day from northern B.C. to the Lower Mainland.

AVERAGE GOAL

Westcoast Transmission Co. hopes to average 300,000,000 cubic feet a day through 1960 and has capacity for 650,000,000 feet.

The northern B.C. feeder system will link Westcoast's gathering point at Taylor, 30 miles northwest of Dawson Creek, with Fort Nelson, at the threshold of what is believed to be one of the most valuable gas fields in North America.

BUILDER NAMED

It will be built by Gas Trunk Line of British Columbia Ltd. with participation of "principal operating companies in the development of British Columbia's... oil and gas industry," Mr. McMahon said.

Directors and detailed proposal of the new company will be announced soon, he said.

The line will put the company in position to tap such wells as the fabulous Kotocho Lake wildcat of Western Natural Gas Company which, with an estimated open flow capacity of 835,000,000 cubic feet a day, could produce enough gas to supply all of Canada.

VAST RESERVE

It will also help to form an obvious Lower Mainland outlet for the vast natural gas reserve believed to exist in the Yukon.

Mr. McMahon said yesterday that some of the wells drilled in northern B.C. recently have capacities as big as any in the world and that the field has yielded one producing well for every two wildcats drilled.

By comparison, only one of every nine wildcats becomes a producer in the U.S. and only one of five in oil- and gas-rich Alberta.

Production capacities of the wells are running from 20,000 to 30,000,000 cubic feet a day in the area.

Mr. McMahon, who is president of Westcoast Transmission Co., said the project is being developed by the company.

Russian in Space Now U.S. Expert's Hunch

CHICAGO (UPI) — Maj. Gen. Medaris is former commanding general of the U.S. army ordnance missile command.

WASHINGTON (CP) — Collapse of the Paris summit conference and return of the cold war may help rescue Bomarc-B missile production program from the congressional knife.

Senators who formerly criticized the Bomarc and other controversial military projects suddenly became sympathetic Wednesday, urging the defence department to do everything it can to boost U.S. military strength.

SUMMED UP

Sen. Richard Russell, Georgia Democrat, appeared to sum up feelings prevailing in Congress when he told a Senate appropriations subcommittee:

"A man erratic enough to do what Khrushchev did at Paris is capable of doing almost anything. We have too much at stake to deal with him except from a position of strength."

READY TO HELP

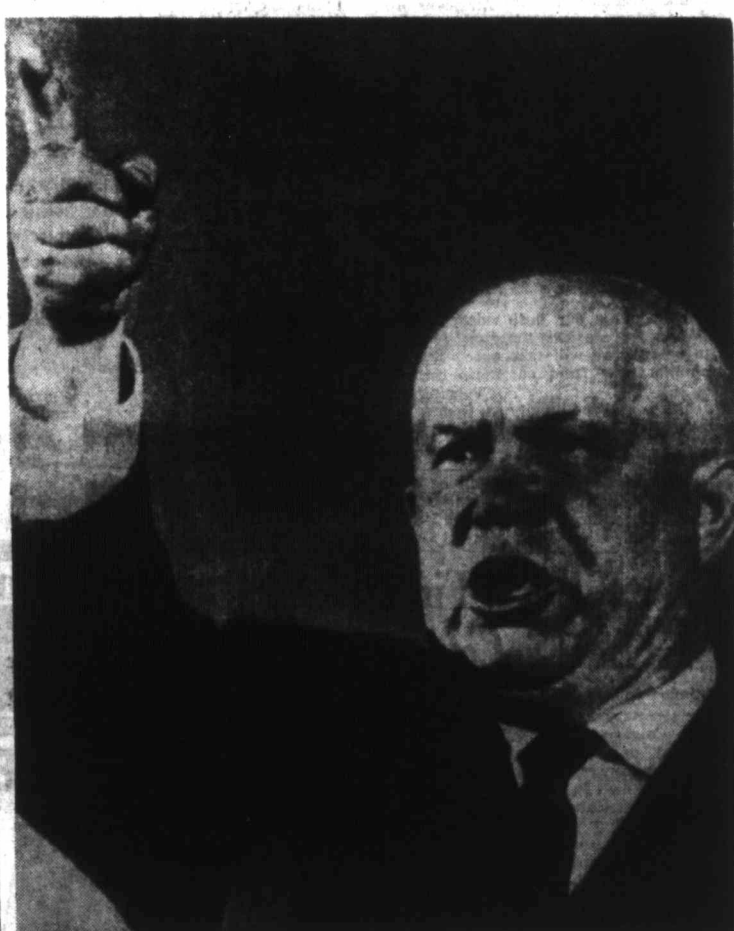

Senator Dennis Chavez, subcommittee chairman, told James Douglas, defence undersecretary: "We are ready to co-operate. Tell us what you need; we are ready to provide."

Douglas, among other things, appealed for restoration of the Bomarc-B production program which the House of Representatives had decided to eliminate.

CHANGE LIKELY

Chavez, who previously had criticized the Bomarc as a poor performer, said after the hearing the committee is likely to recommend restoration of funds for the Bomarc.

Douglas asked the subcommittee to recommend that $294,000,000—which the House of Representatives withdrew from Bomarc-B production—be returned so the air force could resume limited production.

Angry Khrushchev Says:

War Is Inevitable if U.S. Sends Any More Spy Planes

PARIS (UPI) — Nikita Khrushchev, booted as the summit villain, ranted and raved yesterday that war is inevitable if the United States sends spy planes over Russia, and insulted President Eisenhower again by comparing him to a "thief caught red-handed."

The Soviet premier shouted and roared and for some moments seemed incoherent as he stood before a noisy crowd of 2,000 at a news conference where he screamed out a tirade against the United States, Eisenhower and West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer.

He threatened to break off the East-West Geneva disarmament talks and resume nuclear testing if the United States does.

He vowed to sign a separate East German peace treaty at a time of his own choosing, that would renew the Berlin crisis.

He threatened to shoot down any more American spy planes and attack the bases from which they took off.

He rejected as undisputed espionage the new, expanded Eisenhower "open skies" aerial inspection plan.

Quicker Than Expected

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The Soviet Union brought the U.S. U-2 spy plane case to the United Nations Wednesday night, declaring American flights over Soviet soil threaten world peace.

The Russians demanded urgent action by the UN Security Council to stop all such flights.

In Paris this week President Eisenhower said the flights over Russia had been ordered stopped as of last Thursday. The Soviet move came quicker than American and other diplomats had expected. In effect, the Russians beat the United States to the draw.

In Washington, officials said the U.S. would welcome full discussion of the incident in the Security Council.

The announcement of the Soviet move came as diplomatic sources disclosed U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge is going to Washington for urgent weekend conferences with Eisenhower on the U.S. course now in the UN.

AERIAL SURVEY

The United States was reported planning to call next week for a meeting of the Security Council to consider Eisenhower's proposal for an international aerial survey under the auspices of the UN to guard against surprise attack.

Khrushchev had said he might request consideration of the U-2 case here.

GROMYKO CABLE

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko cabled the request from Paris, where the summit conference broke up Tuesday over the U-2 spy plane incident May 1. He said the American flights were "aggressive acts."

In a statement issued soon after the UN released Gromyko's message, Lodge denied this.

"There have been no aggressive acts such as the Soviet complaint alleges. Instead of making charges, we should all look for the cause of the trouble—which is the danger of sudden death due to surprise attack by nuclear weapons."

Spotted by Scientists

Space Ship Eludes Camera

Victoria scientists yesterday sighted the Russian space vehicle as it flashed overhead, but failed in an attempt to photograph it because the sky was too bright. They will try again Friday.

This morning the five-ton satellite was scheduled to appear between 3.28 and 3.29 a.m. low in the southeast. But officials at the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory on Little Saanich Mountain said it will be too low to photograph.

It will appear Friday at 3.48 a.m. PDT at an elevation of about 45 degrees in the south-east and if the weather is clear another attempt will be made to photograph the space vehicle as it circles the earth 200 miles up.

Earlier, Dr. R. M. Petrie, observatory director, said the satellite was visible to the naked eye Wednesday morning. Meanwhile, a University of Hawaii professor yesterday predicted an early and fiery death for the satellite. Prof. Ralph E. Partridge said, the satellite is inside the atmosphere and "cannot last long."

Lodging for Paraders

Billets of visiting bandsmen coming to Victoria for the big parade Monday are still a problem.

Taken to Court

Victoria Elevator Limited, unsuccessful in an attempt to have its Ogden Point elevator taken off the business tax assessment roll by a court of revision, is taking its case to the B.C. Supreme Court.

According to a writ served on the city yesterday, the company claims damages for alleged breach of fixed-assessment contracts with the city made in 1927 and 1953, an injunction against levying business tax on the property, and a declaration of exemption, by the contracts, from business tax.

The city's stand has been that the fixed-assessment contracts were for property taxation, and did not cover the business tax later introduced. Court of revision reduced the assessment of the grain elevator from $30,600 to $16,800, but found itself powerless to consider the question of law involved in the contracts, which now will come before the Supreme Court.

Works Minister W. N. Chant, who underwent surgery Monday in St. Joseph's Hospital, is reported to be making favorable progress. Nature of the operation was not stated.

Post Office Service
Limited for Holiday

Victoria post office will operate on a holiday service basis on Victoria Day Monday. There won't be any mail deliveries and only evening street letter box collections. Wicket service will be available from 10 a.m. until 12 noon, but the money and savings bank wicket will be closed all day.

Lobby of the post office building will be open from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Warning to Sprayers

Don't Poison Self
Along with Bugs

Modern insecticides can be a menace as well as a blessing, the Victoria-Esquamalt health department reminded residents yesterday.

"With such generalized use of insecticides people sometimes forget that many such materials are very dangerous and can cause injury if handled carelessly," the department said in a warning. "Not only is the person applying the insecticide at risk but also persons in the general area can be exposed to dangerous levels of poison."

Inhalation and absorption through the skin can result in poisoning, the department said, as well as eating or drinking insecticides.

It recommended:

- Ascertain the proper methods of handling the chemicals as recommended by the makers.
- Use of the lowest effective concentrations.
- Wearing of protective clothing which, like exposed skin, should be washed every time insecticide is used.
- Use of respirators when inhalation appears unavoidable.
- Locking up supplies.

Light Ruling
Postponed

Decision by city council on the form of street lighting Victoria is to have downtown when overhead wiring is removed probably will wait the return from holiday, in about two months, of lighting superintendent Kenneth Reid. Mayor Percy Scurrah said yesterday.

Pre-Inaugural Run

Road Not Done
Ferry Diverted

The pre-inaugural run of the government-owned ferry Mv. Sidney will likely be made to the wharf at Sidney village rather than Swartz Bay, the regular tie-up place.

Sidney-North Saanich Chamber of Commerce president Gordon Hulme told chamber members last night they would have a tough time getting a welcoming committee over the still unfinished Swartz Bay road. The run is set for June 9 at 11 a.m.

Members of Victoria and Sidney-North Saanich chambers of commerce will be among those to welcome the ferry when it docks.

"Maybe Washington State Ferries will not let them use the wharf now," cracked one chamber member.

The provincial ferry service originally planned to use the federal government wharf at Sidney in conjunction with Washington State, but scrapped the idea in favor of building its own wharf at Swartz Bay.

Extreme
Pruning
'Butchery'

City parks administrator W. H. Warren doesn't think much of people who change the natural shapes of trees, he said yesterday — particularly flowering trees.

Re-shaping trees by severe pruning, Mr. Warren said, makes them unproductive of blooms and ugly, and is butchery, "a harsh word, but it's accurate."

Not only amateurs do it in Victoria, he added. "A lot of it is done by so-called professionals, some of them trained in the Old Country, who should know better. But for some reason they persist."

Mayor Seeks
Mall Action

Mayor Percy Scurrah hopes a definite decision will be made at the next city council, he said yesterday on how and when to proceed with the downtown parking and mall bylaw.

The bylaw was scheduled to go to a vote of downtown property-owners May 5, but was postponed until May 19, and now has been postponed again because, the mayor said, of legal technicalities.

Trooping

Three thousand seats at Wednesday's final run-through for the 1st Battalion, PPCLI, trooping the color ceremony will be available to the general public, an army spokesman announced yesterday.

Wednesday's ceremony at 2 p.m. at Work Point Barracks will be a dress rehearsal for the actual event May 27, but officials pointed out it will be identical in all respects except one.

ADMIRAL TO REVIEW

Brig J. W. Bishop, B.C. area commander, will take the salute at the dress rehearsal and on Friday the battalion will be reviewed by Rear Admiral H. S. Rayner, Flag Officer Pacific Coast.

Only 500 rush seats will be available to the public for Friday's ceremony, which also starts at 2 p.m.

FIRST TROOPING

The 90-minute ceremony will be the first trooping of the color since it was presented to the battalion by Queen Elizabeth in Beacon Hill Park last July. This year it commemorates the battle of Frezenberg, May 8, 1915.

The battalion, commanded by Lt.-Col. J. C. Allan, will parade six guards, each consisting of three officers and 54 rank and file. Also taking part in the ceremony will be the battalion corps of drums and the military band of the Royal Canadian Engineers stationed at Chilliwack.

PARTY, BALL

Immediately following the May 27 ceremony, a garden party for all ranks and their guests will be held on the sports field. That evening a formal reception will be held in the officers' mess and the sergeants' mess will hold a ball. Other ranks will attend a dance the following night.

Around the Island

Cowichan Countering
High Cost of Dying

NORTH COWICHAN—Some persons are being charged "exorbitant prices" for burial plots, Reeve Donald Morton told council yesterday.

He feels it is the council's responsibility to see that there is a cemetery here "where a person can be buried cheaply."

The reeve made the remark during a report to council of a recent Public Utilities Commission hearing into cemetery tie-ups with funeral homes and grave marker firms.

"The things connected with it didn't make pleasant hearing," he said. "We came to the decision it was up to us to see there is a place here where a person can be buried cheaply. Council has the responsibility to see there is such a place. Those not taking the responsibility are falling down."

As a result of the meeting in Victoria he suggested, and council endorsed, a move to take $15 of the present $35 plot fee for a special fund for cemetery maintenance.

During a discussion on whether the cemetery was public or not, the reeve said it was started by the Knights of Pythias which has since disbanded. He added: "It is a boon to some who would have to pay exorbitant prices elsewhere."

Council decided to take an option on five acres of land and the two houses on it beside the Chemainus cemetery for eventual expansion. First they will find the type of ground it is.

CAMPBELL RIVER — A logger whose ankles were crushed between two logs at Call Inlet near Minstrel Island, 60 miles northeast of Campbell River, was flown here for treatment this week. The victim, Norman Lysne of Campbell River, was in hospital only three hours after the accident. He was employed by Atomic Logging Co.

DUNCAN — Nine Cub packs will take in a Cowichan Valley "Howleroo" May 29 here. Hobbes will go on display at 10 a.m. in the Eagles Hall.

At 2 p.m. there will be a parade, followed by field competitions half an hour later.

TOFINO — Pierre Malon of Tofino received undetermined injuries when his car overturned on a soft shoulder while passing another car Tuesday night on the Tofino-Ucluelet Road, six miles from Tofino. The car skidded and rolled, and was damaged extensively.

Other Island News

DUNCAN — Truck driver Vernon N. Weismiller of Duncan was fined $25 yesterday when he pleaded guilty to a charge of speeding on Gibbins Road.

George Malnar of Victoria pleaded guilty to two charges. For speeding he was fined $20 and for driving without insurance he paid $10.

A high school principal and janitor urged blood donors to attend the Red Cross clinic at Duncan today and tomorrow.

They are Mrs. C. C. Guthrie, principal of Strathcona Lodge girls' school at Shawnigan Lake, and Claude Jestin, hotel janitor.

Both were presented Tuesday with certificates for donating 20 pints each. Clinic will be in the United Church Hall from 1.30 to 4.30 p.m. and 6.30 to 9.30 p.m. both days.

LADYSMITH — Cars checked by police in a roadblock here proved to be in as bad shape as those stopped a week ago at Chemainus when half were found defective in some way.

There were 168 vehicles inspected here with the result that officers issued 88 checkup slips for minor defects.

Another eight drivers will be charged with driving offences, ranging from driving without valid licences to driving cars with more than three mechanical defects.

LAKE COWICHAN — Two canvasses for funds have ended successfully here.

A total of $348 for a swimming instructor and lifeguard for Riverside Park was collected by the United Organizations of Lake Cowichan.

Members of the local branch, Canadian Mental Health Association, collected $550 during White Cross Week after a series of lectures when membership almost doubled with 160 new members signing up.

PORT ALBERNI — Gale Lynn has been elected president of the Kinsmen Club of Port Alberni.

Others elected to office for the 1960-61 term were: Les McMillan, vice-president; Doug Hamon, secretary; Harry Webster, treasurer; John Denny, historian; Colin McPherson, registrar; Pete Gustine, Don Wilson and Ted Okrainetz, directors. Irving Wilson was again elected an honorary member of the club for the coming season.

PORT ALBERNI — The Junior Chamber of Commerce is preparing to play host to 300 delegates and their wives at the B.C.-Yukon annual Jaycee convention to be held in Alberni Athletic Hall, May 26, 27 and 28.

S. J. Squire, M.L.A., will speak at opening ceremonies May 26 at 1 p.m. Later in the afternoon delegates will stage a fun parade through the Twin Cities, arriving at Port Alberni city hall at 4 p.m. for welcome by Mayor Mabel Anderson of Alberni and Mayor Lorah Jordon of Port Alberni.

Bill Mackenzie is chairman of the convention committee which has arranged the three-day program. Among entertainers who will appear at evening social sessions will be comedian Barney Potts, John Emerson and his Theatre Under the Stars cast of "My Fair Lady."

Convention speakers will include W. C. R. Jones, a MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Ltd. Vice-president; Fred Moomen of B.C. Telephone Co., and Monty Aldous, a former national president of Jaycees.

DUNCAN — Gurd Schmidt has been elected president of the Cowichan Junior-Senior High School students' council for the 1960-61 school year.

Others of the executive elected are Joyce Schmidt, vice-president, and Burly Whitaker, treasurer.

Elections take place today for secretary and social representative. Nominated for secretary are Caroline Hansen, Carol Pack and Kristen Pederson. Nominated for socials are Diane Macfarlane and Doreen Kidd.

DUNCAN — A general meeting of the Cowichan Creamery Association has been set May 30 to consider buying more property.

Directors have suggested the creamery pay $9,999 for property at the corner of Queens and Duncan, across the street from the present buildings.

Meeting is called for 8 p.m. in the Cowichan Agricultural Society office.

PARKSVILLE — Proceeds amounting to $865.78 resulted from a community auction and rummage sale conducted by Parksville Kinsmen Club and the Kinette Club.

The rummage sale alone, a Kinette project, netted $264.43 and the auction sale brought $572.63. Donations of $29.75 completed the total.

REEVE DONALD MORTON find the cause

Alberni

Two-Week Extension On Taxes

ALBERNI—Taxpayers in Alberni will have an additional two weeks in which to scrape together their tax money.

At council meeting this week the city solicitor was instructed to prepare a bylaw setting July 16 as the deadline for tax payment.

Usually, the deadline is the first business day after the July 1 holiday. The delay in setting the water frontage rate bylaw caused a delay in issuing of tax notices, which, in turn, was reason for the delayed tax deadline.

"Every member of the council is concerned," Reeve Donald Morton told a delegation yesterday, but he added, "no action can be undertaken until the cause is found."

James Webster, president of the Chemainus-Crofton and District Chamber of Commerce, and Len Robinson of the Kinsmen Club, headed the delegation that asked council what it is waiting for.

The reeve "guaranteed" that he would get the figures of tests taken two years ago when the beach was closed, and results of recent tests to figure a solution "before the bathing season starts."

The subject was sparked by a letter at the last council meeting from Dr. C. J. G. Mackenzie, medical health officer for the Central Vancouver Island Health Unit.

He said pollution was so bad he was taking weekly tests. If it did not show a marked improvement he would have to close the beach to swimmers. It was closed for the same reason two years ago.

SAFEGUARD
Considering the "thousands of dollars" the Kinsmen club had spent on the making of the park, Mr. Webster said he feels "it is not too much to expect North Cowichan to spend several thousand dollars to safeguard the health of children."

"We don't know there is a closure coming," countered the reeve. "It is a little difficult to spend public money on assumption. Your feelings are justified. We thought we fixed it two years ago."

Council extended the sewage outlet for the city several thousand feet into the bay.

The reeve added: "The first notice we had of it was two weeks ago and we haven't heard from them (health officials) since. We don't want to go ahead without proper investigation."

Drownings Accidental

UCLUELET—Accidental death by drowning was the verdict at a coroner's inquest into the death of George, 20, and Robert Williams, 19, whose bodies were found at Stuart Island, across from Ucluelet, Saturday morning. The two men were missing on their way home from Ucluelet to the Ucluelet Reserve.

Summer Service

Islands Iron Out Ferry Squabble?

GANGES—Summer ferry schedules which may be acceptable to both the inner and outer Gulf Islands are expected in June.

A series of wires were sent last week by the Salt Spring Island Businessmen's Association and the Chamber of Commerce to Premier Bennett, Highways Minister P. A. Gagliardi and Recreation Minister Earle Westwood.

The government has agreed to expand the Fulford-Swartz Bay service which will interlock with the Sidney-Taswanen ferries.

The Mv. Delta Princess will remain on Salt Spring service for the summer.

The Mv. Delta Princess will leave Fulford at 6 a.m. for Swartz Bay and every two hours thereafter, until the final trip which arrives in Fulford at 8 p.m.

The Mv. Motor Princess will service the outer islands on a schedule similar to that carried out by the smaller Mv. Cy Peck last summer, connecting with B.C. ferries on the final trip to Swartz Bay at 9 p.m. for service to Fulford.

It is understood that the Mv. George S. Pearson will serve on the Vesuvius-Crofton gulf, approximately on the same schedule as last summer. The Cy Peck will be a "stand-by" ship at Fulford.

Both the inner and the outer islands have been battling for the larger "Princess" ferries.

Cowichan First Band Accepting Budget Right

The 1,000-member Cowichan Indian band has become the first Indian group in B.C. to accept the right to spend its own revenue on a basis similar to that of any municipality.

The Indian affairs branch of the federal citizenship and immigration department announced this week that the council will open its own bank account, appoint a treasurer and signing officers.

The Cowichan band has drawn up an operating budget of $12,200 a year. Expenditures include: housing, $2,000; roads, $1,000; relief, $3,000; maintenance and operation of equipment, $1,100; fencing, $700; salaries and expenses, $1,850; utilities, $1,050. Remainder is for weed control, social and sports activities and flood control.

Band revenue is earned partly from interest on capital funds held in trust by the government and partly from rental of Indian land. The Cowichan band, under Chief Elwood Modeste, is the largest in B.C.

Alderman Released On Bail

DUNCAN—Ald. John Kerrone has been released on $1,000 cash bail on a charge of setting fire to a building. He was arrested Tuesday and appeared without plea before Magistrate A. C. Sutton at a court sitting in the afternoon.

The charge is in connection with a fire that seriously damaged an empty house several weeks ago at the corner of York and Alexander in the municipality.

The case is to come up in police court for election on June 6. Crown counsel is A. I. Macdonald. Appearing for Mr. Kerrone is J. C. Davie.

Lecturer Surveys Summit

'I Know Spies Operating in B.C.'

NANAIMO—A lecturer on world affairs and head of the Croatian Peasant Association on this continent said in Nanaimo Wednesday, "If it had been Churchill sitting at the Paris summit conference he would have told Khrushchev where to go."

Dr. Maladen G. Zorkin was commenting on the collapse of the Paris summit talks. He had said in a speech in Nanaimo recently that Khrushchev was pretending to be a "strong but friendly and smiling bear. He now has emerged as a biting bear."

Dr. Zorkin said Khrushchev is changing his policy of "cold and hot" to confuse the West, and hinted what we needed was a strong hand.

The Yugoslavian-born student of history said Khrushchev was trying to make Eisenhower say "take Berlin" by his continual condemnation of the president.

Alaska Floods Ease

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP)—Flood conditions on Alaska's two major rivers, the Yukon and the Kuskowim, appeared to be easing Wednesday after U.S. navy planes showered ice jams with 500-pound bombs.

Dr. Zorkin termed it a "typical blunder of inexperienced diplomacy by the United States state department. But we must never forget this incident is insignificant in view of the million secrets which Russia has obtained from Canada and the United States."

He cited the case of Igor Gouzenko and added, "I know spies operating right here in B.C. and I can prove it."

He said the only language the Russians understand is the language of the fist and that is the language we should talk.

He predicted the results of the summit collapse will mean a complete reorganization of the state department. It will be the greatest house-cleaning which it carried will boost our economy. He said we will need more armaments to retain breakdown and the threats our freedom.

B.C. to Get $450,000,000 Natural Gas System

McMahon Outlines Project

First stage of a new $450,000,000 natural gas transmission system for B.C. was disclosed in a joint announcement here yesterday by Premier Bennett and petroleum magnate Frank M. McMahon.

Immediate plans call for expenditure of $100,000,000 during 1961 on construction of a 250-mile feeder pipeline in northern B.C.

DOUBLE CAPACITY

Second stage, three to four years away, will involve a $100,000,000 expansion of the feeder system and a $250,000,000 project designed to double the carrying capacity of the 650-mile Westcoast Transmission Co. trunk line between Taylor and Sumas.

The entire project, Mr. McMahon told reporters in the premier's office late yesterday, is designed to make possible the transmission of 1,000,000,000 cubic feet of gas a day from northern B.C. to the Lower Mainland.

AVERAGE GOAL

Westcoast Transmission Co. hopes to average 300,000,000 cubic feet a day through 1960 and has capacity for 650,000,000 feet.

The northern B.C. feeder system will link Westcoast's gathering point at Taylor, 30 miles northwest of Dawson Creek, with Fort Nelson, at the threshold of what is believed to be one of the most valuable gas fields in North America.

BUILDER NAMED

It will be built by Gas Trunk Line of British Columbia Ltd., with participation of "principal operating companies in the development of British Columbia's . . . oil and gas industry," Mr. McMahon said.

Directors and detailed proposal of the new company will be announced soon, he said.

The line will put the company in position to tap such wells as the fabulous Kotoche Lake wildcat of Western Natural Gas Company which, with an estimated open flow capacity of 335,000,000 cubic feet a day, could produce enough gas to supply all of Canada.

VAST RESERVE

It will also help to form an obvious Lower Mainland outlet for the vast natural gas reserve believed to exist in the Yukon.

Mr. McMahon said yesterday that some of the wells drilled in northern B.C. recently have capacities as big as any in the world and that the field has yielded one producing well for every two wildcats drilled.

By comparison, only one of every nine wildcats becomes a producer in the U.S. and only one of five in oil- and gas-rich Alberta.

Production capacities of the wells are running from 20,000 to 30,000,000 cubic feet a day in the area.

Mr. McMahon, who is president of Westcoast Transmission Co., said the project is being developed by a consortium of companies.

Bomarc Saved By Summit Fall?

Russian in Space Now U.S. Expert's Hunch

CHICAGO (UPI) — Maj. Gen. John Medaris Wednesday made what he called a "long guess" that the Russians have a man aboard their new spaceship encircling the earth and said he had a "good hunch" they will try to recover the satellite. Medaris is former commanding general of the U.S. army ordnance missile command. (See Page 37.)

China Flexes Muscles, Masses Off Formosa

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — Communist China Wednesday began acting and talking tough.

Nationalist Chinese sources said the Reds are massing ships and planes across from this Nationalist island stronghold.

WASHINGTON (CP) — Collapse of the Paris summit conference and return of the cold war may help rescue Bomarc-B missile production program from the congressional knife.

Senators who formerly criticized the Bomarc and other controversial military projects suddenly became sympathetic Wednesday, urging the defence department to do everything it can to boost U.S. military strength.

SUMMED UP

Sen. Richard Russell, Georgia Democrat, appeared to sum up feelings prevailing in Congress when he told a Senate appropriations subcommittee: "A man erratic enough to do what Khrushchev did at Paris is capable of doing almost anything. We have too much at stake to deal with him except from a position of strength."

READY TO HELP

Senator Dennis Chavez, subcommittee chairman, told James Douglas, defence undersecretary: "We are ready to co-operate. Tell us what you need; we are ready to provide." Douglas, among other things, appealed for restoration of the Bomarc-B production program which the House of Representatives had decided to eliminate.

CHANGE LIKELY

Chavez, who previously had criticized the Bomarc as a poor performer, said after the hearing the committee is likely to recommend restoration of funds for the Bomarc. Douglas asked the subcommittee to recommend that $294,000,000—which the House of Representatives withdrew from Bomarc-B production—be returned so the air force could resume limited production.

Red-faced, shrieking with finger raised in emphasis, Nikita Khrushchev tears into tirade before hostile Paris audience.

Angry Khrushchev Says:

War Is Inevitable if U.S. Sends Any More Spy Planes

PARIS (UPI) — Nikita Khrushchev, booed as the summit villain, ranted and raved yesterday that war is inevitable if the United States sends spy planes over Russia, and insulted President Eisenhower again by comparing him to a "thief caught red-handed."

The Soviet premier shouted and roared and for some moments seemed incoherent as he stood before a noisy crowd of 2,000 at a news conference where he screamed out a tirade against the United States, Eisenhower and West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer.

The Russian leader, whose demands for an abject American apology for the U-2 spy plane incident, wrecked the summit conference, left this swan song as he prepared to fly off to East Berlin today.

He threatened to break off the East-West Geneva disarmament talks and resume nuclear testing if the United States does.

He vowed to sign a separate East German peace treaty at a time of his own choosing, which could renew the Berlin crisis.

● He threatened to shoot down any more American spy planes and attack the bases from which they took off.

● He rejected as undignified espionage the new, expanded Eisenhower "open skies" aerial inspection plan.

Reds Win Draw

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The Soviet Union brought the U.S. U-2 spy plane case to the United Nations Wednesday night, declaring American flights over Soviet soil threaten world peace.

The Russians demanded urgent action by the UN Security Council to stop all such flights.

In Paris this week President Eisenhower said the flights

over Russia had been ordered stopped as of last Thursday.

The Soviet move came quicker than American and other diplomats had expected. In effect, the Russians beat the United States to the draw.

In Washington, officials said the U.S. would welcome full discussion of the incident in the Security Council.

The announcement of the Soviet move came as diplomatic sources disclosed U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge is going to Washington for urgent weekend conferences with Eisenhower on the U.S. course now in the UN.

AERIAL SURVEY

The United States was reported planning to call next week for a meeting of the Security Council to consider Eisenhower's proposal for an international aerial survey under the auspices of the UN to guard against surprise attack.

Khrushchev had said he might request consideration of the U-2 case here.

There have been no aggressive acts such as the Soviet complaint alleges. Instead of making charges, we should all look for the cause of the trouble—which is the danger of sudden death due to surprise attack by nuclear weapons.

Q Is for Question

Start the Day with a Snarl

Columnist reporter Terry Hammond, along with scores of other Victorians, is trying to kick the cigaret habit with the help of the Colonist's recent series of articles by Arthur King. Hammond, a three-park-day "addict," describes another day in his withdrawal.

By TERRY HAMMOND

Q-Day minus two.

Question and answer day here again.

Q. How do you plan to spend Q-Day?

A. In shock.

Q. It seems to me that just getting started on Q-Day with this no smoking business is going to be the biggest problem. How will you start?

Cigaret Addict's Diary

A. With a snarl. This will drive my family well away from the danger area for the entire day. They will not only be out of harm's way, they will be far enough off so that they won't see me if I nip into the bush for a few fast drags.

Q. People have said that after I have quit smoking I will gain a lot of weight. What can I do about this?

A. Start smoking.

Q. If you fail to stop smoking after the Arthur King treatment are you going to conclude that you have no will-power?

A. No, I'm going to write a pretty nasty letter to Arthur King.

Q. My wife has bet me $100 that I won't quit smoking. Don't you think that makes quitting worthwhile?

A. I don't know, but if your wife has $100 that certainly makes her worthwhile.

Q. When I catch my young son smoking I wash out his mouth with soap. What do you think of that?

A. I think that's bully.

Q. I can't seem to find Arthur King in "Who's Who." Is he alive or did you just invent him?

A. We did not invent Arthur King. As far as we know he was invented in the usual way. He is thought to be still alive, but he did quit smoking some months ago and by now he may have chewed his fingernails down to a main artery and bled to death.

Portugal To Hail Sad Ike

PARIS (UPI) — A deeply disappointed President Eisenhower, leaving the scene of the shattered summit conference, took off from Paris early today on a flight to Portugal, which waited to accord him a hero's welcome.
